Wait Cromwell's Reply To Hull's Open Rebuke

CAPITAL SEES DIPLOMAT QUIT CANADIAN POST

Anti-German Speech Violated Instructions, Secretary Says in Criticism.

WARNED NOT TO REPEAT

Public Condemnation, Unusual in Diplomatic Ranks, Gives Washington Surprise.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The capital today eagerly awaited James H. R. Cromwell's reply to the most stinging rebuke publicly administered to an American diplomat by a secretary of state in recent history.

Secretary Cordell Hull last night informed the U. S. minister to Canada that his vigorous anti-German speech in Toronto earlier this week violated the state department's standing instructions to diplomats not to speak on controversial subjects without Washington's knowledge and approval. Cromwell was warned not to repeat the error.

The capital wondered whether the wealthy young diplomat—husband of Doris Duke, tobacco heiress—might answer Hull by turning in his resignation. It has already been widely and responsibly reported that he intends to seek a senate seat from New Jersey.

Hull's rebuke, publicly administered through a press statement, caused some surprise even among state department officials. Earlier this week most of them had thought Cromwell would receive, at most, a private admonition from Hull.

Neither Germany nor any other foreign government protested Cromwell's speech, in which he attacked American isolationist policy and said an Allied victory was essential to the preservation of democracy, state department officials said.

Calls for Recall.

But the speech evoked strong condemnation in congress, where

Here are the principals in the furor stirred by James R. Cromwell, U. S. minister to Canada, when he gave an anti-German speech at Toronto. Secretary Hull delivered a stinging, public rebuke to Cromwell and Senator Bennett Champ Clark of Missouri has demanded recall of Cromwell as minister.

Forecast Puts Crimp In Easter Weather Hopes

Easter paraders will receive no co-operation from the weatherman and there is every possibility that those gay flowers on milady's Easter bonnet may be dripping icicles before the day is over.

Present indications point to low temperatures which will make the old winter overcoat comfortable if not fashionable, unless you happen to be in Miami (and you can't be too sure about that).

Over the nation swept a cold wave which left Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin shivering under sub-zero temperatures. It was eight below zero in Duluth and three below in St. Paul. In the Atlantic states there were heavy snowfalls and continued snow flurries crippled Easter traffic and grounded planes along the seaboard.

All predictions were for a cold Easter; a slight rise in temperature tomorrow, but falling again Saturday night and remaining low over Sunday and Monday.

It was 16 degrees above zero this morning in the Mansfield area, while the average temperature for the past 24 hours was ten degrees below the normal of the past 15 years. A snowfall of 1½ inches was recorded during the night, and at noon thermometers were still hovering around the 18-degree mark.

STILL SERIOUS

Condition of Congressman, Hurt In Crash, 'Not So Good.'

SALEM — (NS) — Condition of Congressman Paul Shafer, 46, of Battle Creek, Mich., was reported "not so good" today by attendants at Salem City hospital where Shafer was taken after his coupe plunged into a ravine on route 45 near Salem. Shafer suffered a fractured vertebra and head injuries.

YOUR EASTER EGGS COST LESS

Prices This Year Below Figures at Same Time Year Ago.

Your Easter eggs will be slightly cheaper this year than last, despite the fact that the holiday is several weeks earlier than usual.

Local markets are selling selected white eggs for around 22 cents a dozen which is three cents under last year's Easter price.

The Chicago wholesale market reports egg prices are lower this Easter than any time in the past six years.

CRITICIZE NLRB

Board's Own Officials Say It's 'Ineffective.'

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The labor board's administrative machinery, under congressional investigation since December, was described by a committee of the board's own officials in a report made public today as "ineffective" and "insufficiently" organized.

The 10,000-word report of these officials, written last fall, was given out by the house committee investigating the agency.

The board committee consisted of four regional directors—A. Howard Myers, G. L. Patterson, W. M. Aicher and Edwin Amelliott—who were set to work on the inquiry last October after William M. Leiserson, a member of the board, criticized the office of secretary and demanded that its incumbent, Nathan Witt, be relieved of his duties.

MAN BLOWS OFF OWN LEGS, DIES

Mine Operator Stands on Box of Dynamite, Lights Fuse.

GOLDEN, Colo.—(U.P.)—Officers today believed that George Parfet, 49, had a good reason for committing suicide, although he never explained it further than "I was in a jam."

Parfet, operator of one of the nation's largest clay mining companies, stood on a box of dynamite yesterday and set it off. The blast dazed workmen, but it only mangled Parfet's legs. Bleeding profusely, he dragged himself back to the powder house and pulled out another box of dynamite.

"Stand back," he told his employes. "I'm really going to do it this time. They took the dynamite from him and called an ambulance. He died later.

LANDS IN ROAD

Pilot Grounds Plane By Light of Automobile Headlamps.

COLUMBUS—(NS)—Pilot W. R. Ammerman related today how he landed his five-passenger Stinson plane on route 62 near Johnstown when motor trouble developed.

Ammerman, who was en route from Buffalo, N. Y., to Port Columbus, said lights from a passing automobile enabled him to see the road and he set the plane down with only minor damage. The plane slipped from the road and nosed over, damaging the undercarriage. Neither Ammerman nor W. L. Kline, Galena, O., a passenger, was injured.

CALLS OFF NLRB ELECTION HERE

Board Says Union Applied for Withdrawal on Balloting at Ideal Electric.

Although it had been scheduled by the National Labor Relations board, there was no election to determine a collective bargaining agent at the Ideal Electrical and Manufacturing company today.

Oscar S. Smith, regional director of the NLRB, said the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers' union, local 705, which had asked for the election, had filed an application to withdraw.

He said he had forwarded the application to Washington for approval, but had received no ruling. However, no Labor board representatives were here today to conduct the election, and work was progressing as usual at the plant, according to S. Glenn Vinson, president. . . . .

Smith said he had recommended that the board in Washington approve the withdrawal application, and expected formal action before next Thursday, the deadline set for such an election.

It was pointed out that the election could have been held at any time up to that date, following the NLRB order that an election be held. The March 22 date was set, however.

A prepared statement from Edwin Beal, local UERW representative today said that the union had not asked for an election, and did not consider this to be a "proper time" and also felt that

PREFERS 'WORKS'

Husband Takes Blame Rather Than Do Housework.

AKRON—(U.P.)—Steven Markus today chose the workhouse in preference to housework.

His wife had been sentenced to the workhouse for her conviction of illegal possession of whisky. Steven was left behind to care for the household and three children.

But the husband changed the order when he went into court and confessed that he, not his wife, owned the whisky.

GIRL, 10, TELLS OF FIGHTING OFF MOLESTER

Police Hunt 'Big Black Sedan' After Child Says Man Tried to Drag Her Into Car.

WAS SKATING WITH FRIEND

Breaks Loose From Attempted Assailant, Refuses to Enter His Machine.

Police today had thrown out a dragnet for a "big black sedan" driven by an unidentified man who attempted to drag a 10-year-old girl into his car yesterday afternoon.

Police Chief Meade K. Bates said that all members of the department had received a description of the machine and part of the license number given to officers by the girl who broke from the man's grasp and fled to her home

Officers were called to the northside residence by members of the family about 2:30 p. m. yesterday when the child returned home with the story about a tall man who had attempted to drag her into his car while she was roller skating with a companion.

She told investigating officers that the man approached them at the corner of Harker and Bowman streets and tried to entice them into the machine which she described as a "big black sedan." When the girls refused to go near him, she related, he jumped from the car and grabbed her.

The child broke from his grasp and both fled, neither observing what direction the car went, Bates said.

Officers said both children gave the same description of the man and the car and part of the license plate.

They added they were hampered in tracing down the number since neither had observed whether the plates were a 1939 or 1940 issue. However, two officers made a trip to a neighboring city today in an attempt to trace the license plate.

Meanwhile identification pictures of all known suspects were to be viewed by the two girls today in an effort to identify the man.

Bates said it apparently was the first attempt in Mansfield by the suspect for it was believed that all the child molesting cases had been cleared up in the city at the time George Beck, 25-year-old WPA worker was arrested.

GET SENTENCES

3 More Indicted by Grand Jury Handed Prison Terms.

Three more men indicted a week ago by the county grand jury had been sentenced to the Ohio penitentiary and Mansfield reformatory today by Judge C. H. Huston in common pleas court, making a total of nine who have been sent to the two institutions since last Saturday.

Richard Southward, 38, Mansfield, and James Newsom, 30, colored, of Ashland were to be taken to the penitentiary today to begin their sentences. Southward was given one to 15 years for breaking and entering and Branch received a one-to-20-year term for forgery.

George L. Offenburger, 23, Mansfield, Southward's companion in a number of house burglaries in Mansfield, was sentenced to one to 15 years in the reformatory.

Meanwhile, the Ohio Pardon and Parole commission today paroled Stanley Schmunk, a Richland countian, from the London Prison farm, effective June 15. Schmunk is serving a one-to-three-year term for non-support. He entered Ohio penitentiary last April 19.

Newsmen Tour Sylt Island, Find Most of British Bombs Missed

Goering Takes Them Over Scene of 7-Hour Raid; Few 'Hits' Scored.

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

HORNUM, ISLAND OF SYLT, Germany — (AP) — Three American newspapermen, including this correspondent, toured this island outpost of Germany's aerial front and what we were able to see tends to bear out the German version that nearly seven hours of British bombardment two days ago had "little if any military effectiveness."

Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering's own plane, the "Manfred Von Richthofen," carried us yesterday to the German coast where we transferred for a railway trip across the six-mile Hindenburg dam—causeway from the mainland to the island of Sylt

(The dispatch indicates that the newspapermen were not shown over the air base from the air and the reason for landing on the mainland—and not one of Sylt's flying fields—ostensivbly was to permit a closer examination of the causeway.)

This is what we found

1. Sylt's lifeline railway across the causeway apparently undamaged. However, our slow train stopped frequently for inspection of the right-of-way.

2. Shattered windows of airplane hangars but no evidence of direct hits on hangars.

3. Sand dunes at the southern end of the island pitted with bomb craters. Officers estimated that about 40 bombs fell on the extensive grounds of the airport in the south.

4. A building, which Germans identified as an infirmary, with its roof blown off and walls cracked. Germans said that no one was killed there, because all patients had taken refuge in the cellar before the building was hit.

5. A small structure, identified as a target range, extensively damaged.

6. Evidence that an incendiary bomb had struck a great steel crane used to lift seaplanes from the water but had sputtered out on the iron platform.

Authorities said that three civilians were struck by bomb splinters. Three British planes were shot down, the Germans reported

These are British airmen, pictured on their return from what Britain called "the biggest air raid of the war"—the attack on the island of Sylt. But American newspapermen, taken on a tour of the island by German officials, found the British aim not very good. At least, they saw few signs of military damage.

FILL CHURCHES ON GOOD FRIDAY

2,500 at Two Union Services Hear Story of Crucifixion and Christ's Sacrifice.

Nearly 2,500 Mansfield residents released from their duties by the closing of public offices and stores, heard the story of the Crucifixion and Christ's sacrifice retold at union Good Friday services at noon today at the First Lutheran and First Presbyterian churches.

Rev. Hayes M. Braker, pastor of the Park Avenue Baptist church, delivered the sermon at the First Lutheran church, and Rev. E. G. Corwin of the First Methodist church was in charge of services in the First Presbyterian church as the city paid reverence to the crucified Christ.

Christ's three hours of agony on the cross were commemorated in the mass of the pre-sanctified which began at noon at St. Peter's Catholic church. The services continued three hours in commemoration of Christ's three hours of agony on the cross.

Rev. Corwin urged a capacity congregation of 1,000 at the First Presbyterian church to "think more of cross-bearing and to be willing to suffer for Christ."

In his sermon on "Victory Through Suffering" Rev. Corwin said:

"Christ voluntarily laid down his life because he had come to save the lost and the only way was on the basis of love. He might have escaped the cross but he did not. If he had gone down over the hill from Gethsemane, back to Galilee instead of facing those who took him, he might have lived to advanced age but he would not have lived in the true sense of the word.

"If there is to be redemption there must be sacrifice. If salvation is the end then the cross must be the means. By his stripes we are healed. The task was too great for flesh and blood, but not too great for love.

"There is much to be said to

BANDITS DIDN'T OVERLOOK MUCH

Played Phonograph While They Took Cash, Suits, Dresses.

WARREN—(U.P.)—Three bandits didn't overlook much except tables and chairs in their thorough two and one-half hour holdup of the Evergreen Inn last night.

Cash and valuables of unestimated value were taken from Eli Benich, proprietor, his wife, his daughter, three sons and 17 customers; 12 overcoats, one radio, two cigaret machines, $47 from the cash register, eight gallons of wine, 15 suits of clothes, 15 dresses and fur coats.

In return, the robbers played the cafe phonograph and offered the victims a drink of wine before their departure.

PROBE SABOTAGE

(Picture on Page 3)

BALTIMORE —(INS)— Half a dozen inquiries were underway today into the mysterious partial sinking of the 27,000-ton cargo liner Panamanian at its pier in Baltimore harbor—including investigations by G-men and the federal bureau of steamboat inspection and navigation.

The ship, reputedly the largest cargo carrier in service, was mysteriously flooded early yesterday. Freight line officials said there was a possibility of sabotage, as the ship was loading a cargo for England, but added that carelessness in refueling might has caused the vessel to list and ship water.

The Panamanian, owned by Arnold Bernstein, who was imprisoned for two years by the German Nazi government at the height of a sensational career as a shipping magnate, was the troopship Mongolia during the World war. It sank a German U-boat with the first American shot fired during that war.

Reynaud Tells Cool Chamber of Deputies Aim's to 'Fight and to Win War.'

BULLETIN

PARIS —(AP)— Premier Paul Reynaud's government received a minority vote of confidence in the Chamber of Deputies today. The official vote was 269 favorable, 156 against and there were 110 abstentions.

(By Associated Press)

PARIS — Paul Reynaud in his first appearance as premier before the chamber of deputies today pledged in a ministerial declaration "to direct all French energies to fight and to win" the war against Germany which, he said, was "aided by the treachery of the Soviets."

His government had only one reason for existence, he said—"to win the war."

"To win is to save everything," he said. "To lose is to lose all."

Only a few timid handclaps greeted the premier as he mounted rostrum.

Similarly only a few resopnded when he had finished his declaration. Vice-Premier Camille Chautemps read the same declaration in the senate where it also was received cooly.

In a short, blunt statement of policy the new premier declared that "France is engaged in complete war."

Reynaud faced the chamber of deputies less than 24 hours after the rapid completion of his government, replacing that of Edou-

SUBS STRIKE AT GERMANY'S ORE SUPPLIES

Submarine Invades Mined Seas to Sink 5,000-Ton Vessel; New Drive Looms.

SEE BLOCKADE TIGHTENED

Observers Believe Britain Set to Begin Thrusts at Northern Supply Line.

(By United Press)

LONDON—A British submarine daringly invaded German-mined waters at the entrance to the Baltic sea today, sank the 4,947-ton Nazi steamship Heddernhein and aroused speculation on whether the Allies had opened a drive against shipment of Scandinavian iron ore to the reich.

First German merchantman destroyed by a British submarine torpedo in this war, the Heddernhein went down eight miles east of Skagen, at the northern tip of Denmark and just inside the Kattegat which, between Denmark and Sweden, is the German entrance to the Baltic. Along this route must pass all sea traffic down the Norwegian coast toward the reich, including the much-needed Swedish iron ore shipped to Germany by way of the Norwegian port of Narvik.

In 1915 and 1916 the British navy made a powerful drive to interrupt the sea shipment of Scandinavian ore to the reich and there has recently been much agitation for a similar move at present in order to tighten the economic blockade of the Nazi war machine.

Whether a big-scale Allied thrust at this northern supply line to the reich had been opened was uncertain. But it was pointed out that in the first 12 days during the World war, British submarines sank 14 large German steamships loaded with ore and caused 37 others to wait at Swedish ports until a German convoy system could be organized.

Nazi Crew Warned.

Naval circles said that the sinking of the Heddernhein occurred on the high seas and in accord with international law because territorial waters in the passage to the Baltic extend the usual three miles off shore. The Ger-

George Jessel, Showgirl, 15, Say They Plan to Marry.

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—George Jessel, middle-aged comedian, and Lois Andrews, 15-year-old show girl, said today they intended to marry next Thursday. Jessel recently was divorced in Mexico by Norma Talmadge, the screen actress.

Miss Andrews gained notoriety last October when she gave George White, musical comery producer, a black eye, and later battled another show girl backstage.

"Of course we won't be able to be married until after I'm 16," Miss Andrews said, "and we will have to have mother's permission. But I'm the happiest girl in New York. George and I are very much in love and we hope to be married as soon as we possibly can."

Florida Family Sinks Into Obscurity Again--'Quints' to Be Just One Baby

New Examination Reveals Fame and Fortune Just Peeked at Them.

(By United Press)

MIAMI, Fla.—Mrs. Emory Callahan is back home.

Fame and fortune looked into the one-room in a cottage where she and her husband live, singled them out for a day, and then passed on.

Mrs. Callahan is going to have a baby this summer but not five babies, like she thought. It was all a mistake. She thought an X-ray picture of her womb showed four or five skulls. There never was an X-ray picture until yesterday. It was a fluoroscope through which Mrs. Callahan had been examined before, and if the hospital technician who used it said anything about quintuplets he had been mistaken or was joking.

There will be no news and picture rights, movie, side show or World's fair contracts for the Callahans. The world may never hear of them again and the Dionne children's fame goes unchallenged.

Mrs. Callahan does't care a bit. She hated the hospital room provided by John S. Knight, publisher of the Miami Herald, because the doctors would not let her husband stay there nights. She was glad to get home, and glad that all the commotion in the neighborhood had subsided. She hoped she never saw any more press agents, lawyers, reporters or photographers

The truth came out yesterday when X-ray pictures were made of Mrs. Callahan at Knight's suggestion. The publisher said

Nazi Fashions Decreed For Export Only

BERLIN —(AP)— Fashions don't apply in Germany for the duration of the war. Articles of clothing ordered for export, however, must keep abreast of the latest fashions.

That, in a nutshell, is the essence of an order issued by the German clothing industry to its entire membership.

The order stipulates that economy of material is the main desideratum in the manufacture of clothes. "A man's suit can well look presentable," the order points out, "even if the decrees of fashion haven't been observed in its manufacture. A dress needn't be less attractive merely because the skirt isn't as wide as decreed (by fashion.") . . . . . .

The export orders fall into a different category is made plain by the "Textil-Zeitung," trade organ of the clothing industry."

"It needs hardly to be pointed out that orders placed in Germany by foreign customers must be executed exactly as the customer desires. It is the duty, yes the twofold duty, of German industry to treat this foreign customer with particular politeness."

Germany is most anxious to keep up such world trade as she still has, and is also anxious for every dollar, pound, franc or other foreign currency that she may use for importing articles essential to her conduct of the war.

Berlin Full of Russians Who Can't Speak German.

BERLIN—(AP)—Russians are as thick as hasty pudding in the Reich's capital. There's the embassy staff and the military office, and the naval attache's men, and the consular people, to say nothing of the commercial attaches who are piling into town—and they all speak Russian, but no German.

The "German Institute for Foreigners" at the University of Berlin, known as the best school for German language instruction in the Reich, has designated a special class and professor for Russian students and their language problems. Before the Russian-German pact there had been no Russian pupils at the institute for years.

Chalks Up 696 To Set Record

Frank Burton of Mansfield Rugs Collects Games of 246, 257 and 193 In Big Series.

ANOTHER season mark was erased from the Commercial B league records at the Meder alleys last night when Frank Burton of the Mansfield Rug and Linoleum team blasted the uprights for a spectacular 696 series.

In addition to wrecking the three-game record, Burton came within one pin of toppling the single mark of 258.

Burton started his big string with a 246 and came right back with the 257. He climaxed the rousing series with a 193. Despite Burton's record count, the Rugs failed to win a single game from the Kochheiser Sports, led by Lew Haley's 615.

Team scoring honors were annexed by the Ringside Cafe, which came through with a 2737 count and a pair of victories over the Satterlee Restaurant club.

The defeats suffered by the Satterlee team forced it to relinquish a share of first place to the Mansfield Printers, who swept their series with the Mohican Chevrolets.

The Yuncker Sports, who spilled 2717 pins, added two wins at the expense of the Possum Run Golfers, the Southern Hotel entry took two tilts from Ohio Public Service and the Heilman Grocers won three from the Shelby Cycles.

Thelma Linster Paces Women With 564 Total.

THELMA LINSTER and Margaret Baker waged a sizzling battle for individual scoring honors in the Women's league at the Meder alleys last night.

Thelma, bowling with the Richland Printing team, copped the top spot with a spectacular 564, while Baker followed with a 561 total. Linster started with a 218, added a 155 and finished with a 191. Margaret collected a 208 middle game in her series.

Linster's total, however, wasn't enough to keep her team from dropping two games to the Modern Beauty Salon with whom Margaret performed. McMichael was next high with a 537 as Kobacker's swept its match with the Morgan Dry Cleaners.

BATTLE TO CINCH SHARE OF SECOND ROUND CROWN

St. Mark's Lutherans and the Boy Rangers will be seeking at least a share of the second round title in the Church Class C league in the circuit's closing contest at the Y. M C. A Saturday afternoon.

The Boy Rangers, who are tied with St. Marks with four wins and a loss, tangle with First Presbyterians in the initial tussle at 1 p m. while the Lutherans take on First Methodist in the last tilt. In the other settos, St. John's Evangelicals face First Congregational and South Main Evangelicals play St Paul Episcopals.

'Hun' Willing to Meet Masked Marvel in Armory Ring.

WHATEVER else local fans can say about the vicious masked wrestler "The Hun," they or anybody else cannot say that he hasn't a lot of courage.

He agreed today to meet the Masked Marvel, the other masked unknown who has been keeping local mat fans in a turmoil with his rough wrestling and these two hooded mystery men of the wrestling pad will clash in their long awaited battle in the Armory on next Monday night.

Tim Nolan, matchmaker for the Quality Club today announced that he has signed the men to wrestle on that date in a two out of three falls match.

"Many fans have been speculating upon this match," Matchmaker Nolan said "and many feel that the men are so evenly matched that it would likely result in a draw decision. However I feel that such an outcome would be a detriment to the mat sport here and to prevent such an occurrence I forced both men to agree to wrestle to a finish

"In other words," Nolan stated, "there'll be no time limit on this match and one or the other of them will positively meet defeat Furthermore each has agreed to take off his mask if he is defeated so we can definitely know who he really is."

This corner feels that Nolan was wise in making this a finish match. Local fans have long awaited the opportunity to witness the defeat of the Masked Marvel and since "The Hun" came into the picture they feel the same way about him and it is only fair that they should be assured of a decision one way or the other.

To make this match. Nolan hung up the finest purse that has ever been made up for a match contest here and all indications point to a capacity crowd.

COLUMBUS—(UP)—Cecil Yates and Al Crossley sprinted into undisputed possession of first place today in the six-day bicycle race at the state fairgrounds coliseum here. At the end of the 34th hour, the Yates-Crossley team had traveled 543 miles and six laps, one lap more than four teams tied for second place.

Ohio Cage Coaches Reject Proposal to Raise Basket

CLEVELAND — (AP) — Ohio area coaches responded today with an emphatic no to the basketball rule makers' newest ditty: A tisket, a tasket, shall we raise the basket?

Floyd A. Rowe, one of 14 members of the national basketball committee, sent questionnaires to 1,000 representative basketball men in Ohio, Tennessee, Kentucky and West Virginia and drew about 200 replies.

Only 40 favored and 152 were against encouraging experimentation with baskets 11 or 12 feet high, compared with the present ten-foot height. By virtually the same margin—151-43—they likewise rejected baskets without a backboard. They voted 135-40 against use of convex bankboards.

"The tall man still has the advantage, no matter how high you put the basket," declared Rowe, physical education director for Cleveland public schools, adding: "I don't think raising it would make much difference. The one thing it would do is make the ball, on missed shots, rebound farther from the bankboard and thus end some of the congestion and fouls around the basket."

Rowe pointed out that the rules committee, which meets March 30 at Kansas City, prefers to make no changes in rules unless 70 to 80 per cent of the coaches are shown to be in agreement.

Rule changes made last spring were generally satisfactory, but the basketball men declared officials have not properly enforced the rule awarding two free throws to a player fouled from behind while throwing.

* * *

They voted 126-68 that the rule hadn't been enforced, then added by a 139-49 margin that the present law was satisfactory. A majority agreed, by the narrower 107-76 vote, that the rule was tended to eliminate the deliberate push in the back.

Seek New Site For Cage Meet

COLUMBUS —(UP)— Abandonment of Columbus as site of the state high school basketball tuornament in 1942 hinged only upon a perfunctory formality today.

Virtual certainty that Columbus will be awarded the American bowling congress two years hence forces a transfer—and there was a growing douht if the cage classic would return to the capital city for several years afterward.

* * *

Buffalo, N. Y., only serious rival of Columbus for the ABC meet in 1942, last night removed itself from the bidding after a local booster meeting there.

Group May OK Convex Backboards for Contests.

DALLAS—(AP)—James W. St. Clair, chairman of the National Collegiate Athletic association basketball rules committee, expects no major changes this year but says his group may approve use of convex backboards. The convex backboard, he said, gives spectators better views of shots at the basket. If its use is approved the old style board will not be outlawed.

Shoots 1401 Score In Win

Chalking up one of the highest scores in recent years, the Mansfield Rifle and Pistol club defeated the Bucyrus club by a 1401 to 1358 margin in the Crawford County association match held at the Mansfield range yesterday.

Fred Sells of Mansfield captured high scoring honors with a 288, with Cosgrove of Mansfield following closely with a 285. Kranich of Bucyrus came through with a 280 to lead his club in scoring.

Vander Meer Fails To Look Impressive

HAVANA, Cuba—(UP)—Johnny Vander Meer's comeback stock with the Cincinnati Reds dropped several more points today.

The no-hit hero of 1938 tried again yesterday to regain his form but he looked the worst of the spring training season as the Reds lost an 11 to 7 game to a team of Cuban All-Stars.

* * *

The Cubans scored seven runs off wild Johnny in one and two-thirds innings to clinch the verdict. A home run by Alejandro Crespo with the bases filled in the sixth inning was the chief blow off Vander Meer's none too steady offerings.

Grimes Has First Workout

(By Associated Press)

FORT MYERS, Fla — Two Cleveland "cripples" turned out for practice at the Indians' camp yesterday. Oscar Grimes, utility infield star of last season, had his workout of the spring after convalescing from a knee operation, and shortstop Lou Boudreau, was able to do some throwing. Boudreau's ankle was still in a cast as result of an injury received Monday, but his appearance led Manager Oscar Vitt to believe the flashy youngster might be back in the lineup in two weeks.

HAVANA—If Coach Jimmy Wilson has anything to do with it, the Cincinnati Reds' pitchers will hunt their way to fame and fortune this year. He's giving them long drills in the art. Says Jimmy, "there's hardly a ball game when the batter doesn't have a chance to advance one or two men with a good bunt, and how many times do they do it? About one in a dozen. They'll foul off a couple and then take the third strike."

CLEARWATER, Fla — The question mark wrapped around Leo Durocher's arm isn't making the Dodgers' outlook any brighter. If the veteran shortstop is unable to play, everyone agrees the Flatbush club may well wind up in the second division for neither Pee Wee Reese, Johnny Hudson nor Lou Berger have the experience nor the baseball savvy of Lippy.

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—The rains came, and though the Giants were beating the Detroit Tigers, it was welcome. For it washed out the game and gave Manager Bill Terry a chance to re-arrange his pitching rotation. Now he'll use Hal Schumacher against the Boston Bees today with Clyde Castleman and Manny Salvo ready to help.

* * *

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—The work of Lefty Gomez, in his first appearance yesterday, was encouraging to the Yankees. He allowed two of Boston's 10 hits, gave up only one pass ,and let no one get past first. Red Ruffing added three innings of work and was equally as impressive. The Yanks play their farmhands from Newark today.

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif.—The Pittsburgh Pirates outfield has been trimmed to seven with the release yesterday of Chuck Klein, veteran slugger. Chuck came to the Pirates from the Phillies in the early part of the 1939 campaign and now has been granted permission to make a trade for himself. Among the seven outfielders now on hand is Debs Garms, who can also play infield. The Pirates play the Cubs today at Los Angeles.

Victory Over Billiard Club Cinches Title

Jim Hardin Sinks Free Throw In Overtime as Farmers Cop Thrilling 34-33 Decision Last Night.

RAEMELTON FARM'S LADS took both the first and second half in the Friendly House Senior Class A league play-offs by nosing out the Rex Billiards to the tune of a 34 to 33 score in a hard-fought overtime period at the settlement last night.

Last night's games determined the second round and league titles as the first round was won outright by the Farmers.

Jim Hardin, star guard and high point man for the Farmers, donated the winning point when he sunk a free toss in the overtime period to cinch both titles.

The game went into the overtime period when Mike Wentz, hard-fighting Billiard guard, sunk a field goal to tie the score in the final five seconds of regular game play.

Joe Wentz, Billiard forward, captured high scoring honors for the game by sinking seven field goals and a foul to net 15 of the Billiards' 33 points.

Although the Billiards piled up a total of 13 goals to 11 for the Farmers, they came out on the short end of the tally because of their inability to hit the rim on the free tosses. The Raemelton lauds chalked up 12 points on fouls to the Billiards' seven.

Rex's cuemen defeated the Isaly Dairys in the first game, which went into three gruelling overtime periods, by a 28 to 26 score.

Joe Wentz, who turned in the most outstanding performance of the evening, sunk a free throw in the final minutes of the game to tie up the score. Wentz then comes back in the final overtime period to chalk up the winning two points that took the fighting cuemen into the finals against the Raemelton Farmers.

Club Puzzled By Tax Ruling

Braves' President Refuses to Comment on Action or Set Franchise Value.

Officials of the Mansfield baseball club of the Ohio State league were puzzled and alarmed today over the ruling by State Tax Commissioner William S. Evatt holding that club franchises and players' contracts were taxable as intangibles.

"I feel I am not prepared to make a statement as I have not studied the ruling thoroughly," Joe C. Hartline, president of the Mansfield club, told a News-Journal reporter today. Hartline also said that he was unable to place an estimated value on the club.

Other officers of the Braves refused to comment on the ruling, although one stated yesterday when the ruling was released that he thought the club might be worth $12,000."

Evatt spurned rulings of former tax commissioners when he held that the franchises and contracts were of "definite value" and therefore subject to a three-mill annual levy. He added that the current price fixed on ball players "would be an influencing factor" in arriving at an appraisal.

The commissioner added that the ball clubs had the right to protest, but until such time as evidence should be produced to necessitate a new ruling, his opinion would stand.

Allen county's auditor, in attempting to levy the tax against the Lima Pandas, also of the Ohio league, prompted the ruling.

POSTPONE TRYOUTS

The tryouts for berths on the Mansfield high track team, scheduled at Stadium field yesterday, was postponed because of cold weather, Coach Harry Mehock, stated today. They will be held next week.

SPORTS PARADE

By HENRY McLEMORE

ST. PETERSBURG — (U.P.) — It wasn't until today that I realized there was a definite kinship between baseball and boxing. As recently as yesterday I would have stoutly (and I mean "stoutly" to the tune of 185 pounds and twin chins) denied there was any connection between, say, right field and a right cross.

* * *

But all of a sudden I found myself lolling under a palm tree with Moe Berg of the Boston Red Sox, one of the better minds, baseball or otherwise, in this country. And before we quit lolling he had established a definite relationship between the two.

He bound them together with the expression "one-two punch."

There never was a boxing champion who didn't have a one-two punch, Berg pointed out, and then continued to explain that the chief contention for the major league pennants this year would be made by teams with the same thing.

"Let's look at the American league," Berg said. "Barring accident the main contention will be between the Yankees and the Red Sox. Each of the clubs can throw a deadly one-two punch. On the Yanks the one-two is provided by Joe DiMaggio and Bill Dickey. DiMaggio sets up the opposition and Dickey knocks it out."

Remembering Charley Keller, I suggested that perhaps the Yanks had gone a step further and developed a one-two-three punch.

"Please," Berg said, in a voice rich with melancholy, "let's limit this to just two hitters. Now take the Red Sox. Our one-two punch is thrown by Jimmy Foxx and Ted Williams. Perhaps I'm biased but to me those two fellows form the best one-two in baseball."

The one-two punch holds true in the National league. The champion Cincinnati Reds and their sternest challengers, the Cardinals, have the toughest bing-bang combinations in the Ford Frick belt. The Reds can throw Frank McCormack and Ival Goodman at opposing pitchers. And the Cards have Johnny Mize and Ducky Medwick, that is, when Medwick signs

All of the combinations mentioned present a right-handed hitter and a left-handed hitter. That is the ideal combination. As Paul Derringer told me that combination makes it impossible for a pitcher to let up even a little bit. "Be the pitcher a righthander or a lefthander," says Paul. "He must bear down with all he has on at least one of them."

But enough of this informative writing. The next thing you know I'll be explaining the technique of the drag bunt, or why a good base runner tags second with his left foot when running out a triple.

AMONG the questions going the rounds of Hollywood today is what next year will bring to Shirley Temple. The 10-year-old starlet who enjoyed a four-year reign as the queen of all box office attractions, is fast growing up and taking on a certain maturity despite childish curves and curls. She has an option coming up in July and after that her seven-year contract has only one year to run. But although the shrinkage of the foreign market has cut down the profits on her pictures, she is still one of the biggest box office bets, and it is not likely that her company 20th Century Fox—will let her go. If it does there are a half dozen other companies eager to bid on her services. It is understood that her parents would be more than willing to have her retire from the movies, but they are still a lark to her. At any rate she probably will make fewer.

Maugham Comedy Filmed.

"Too Many Husbands" is another story from the pen of Somerset Maugham who has contributed such notable dramas as "Of Human Bondage," "Rain" and "Secret Agent," and such comedies as "The Beachcomber." In the current story Maugham takes the old Enoch Arden plot, and twists it into a comedy instead of a personal tragedy. A husband, lost at sea, returns to find his wife married to his best friend and business partner, a situation which the wife regards with frank delight. Jean Arthur, Fred MacMurray and Melvyn Douglas are tristarred in this picture which opens at the Madison tomorrow.

Civil War Drama.

In the final stages of the Civil war Southern sympathizers in Nevada raise five million dollars in gold which is to be sent across the line to the South and it is this tremendous prize which sets a dance hall girl and a Union intelligence officer to battling each other. Miriam Hopkins is the southern spy and Errol Flynn is the northern officer. Randolph Scott is seen as the commandant of Libby prison in Richmond, which was a Hades for thousands of northern soldiers during the war and where Flynn is a prisoner "Virginia City" opens at the Ohio tomorrow.

Singing Cowboy.

The popular song of the middlewest "It Makes No Difference Now" is used effectively in "Down The Wyoming Trail" in which Tex Ritter is being shown at the Ritz. Other musical numbers used by the singing cowboy are "Goin' Back To Texas" and "He Looks So Peaceful Now." It is the story of a cowboy who cleans out a band of cattle rustlers. A musical film, "Laugh It Off" with Constance Moore, Johnny Downs and several well-known character players, is also shown

Robinson in Gripping Tale.

"Blackmail" give Edward G. Robinson a powerful character role as a man who lives his life only to revenge himself on a man who sent him to prison for a crime he didn't commit. Much of it takes place in the oil well country of Oklahoma. Ruth Hussey is seen as his wife and Gene Lockhart as the man responsible for all the trouble. The Majestic also offers a Western on its Friday and Saturday bill, "Desperate Trails," starring Johnny Mack Brown.

"Forgotten Girls"

The story of a girl who rises above her destiny is told in "Forgotten Girls" in which a girl is sent to a modern prison for women and is happy for the first time in her life with a room of her own and an opportunity to study and learn. Wynne Gibson and Louise Platt are the women in the story and Robert Armstrong and Jack LaRue are the men. The picture is at the Park. A second feature is "The Arizona Kid" with Roy Rogers.

CHAPTER XXVI

What a price one paid for loving the wrong person, Star thought bitterly. Her pillow that night was wet with tears. Yet the image of Milton brought her a sense of peace. Long ago she had vowed never to hurt him. She must keep that promise whatever the cost to herself.

And the next morning in his office they played what she recognized as their final scene as employer and secretary. The blow she had been dreading fell, but in a different way she had expected.

"Nina has telephoned me," Milton said, glancing at her with the old, tortured look in his eyes. "Your decision makes me feel that I am responsible. I'm sorry, Star. If it weren't for me you'd be marrying a swell kid."

"Bob is too young for me," she said in that small stubborn voice she used when he was pushing her away from him. "Give me credit at least for knowing my own mind."

Milton sighed, then he asked, "Would you like to go back and work for Nina again?"

"What do you mean?"

"She told me yesterday she would have to have a secretary but she never expected to find one she liked as well as you. Today she telephoned to ask if you'd consider coming back to her. I told her you'd have to have as much money as I had intended to pay you at the end of six months and she agreed.

"She knows I was looking for a position then?"

"Certainly not. But you know Nina. If she wants something she wants it. Her argument is that it is more important for her to have a sympathetic secretary than it is for me. There are so few girls she can dictate to without feeling self-conscious and besides, as she reminded me, she discovered you first."

"She probably guesses the truth," Star said thoughtfully. "But if I have to leave you I'd rather go back to Nina than any place I know of. Especially if Bob isn't there."

"I shall feel better about it, too," he admitted. "Life at Nina's will be more interesting for you. There will always be people around. Sometimes we may even have a glimpse of each other."

Within the hour Star had called the stenographic department notifying them of the change. How she disliked and envied that girl who came to take her place. But the prospect of working again for Nina had many advantages. One couldn't be bored or lonely in that house.

Going back made Star happier than anything that had happened for a long time. Her little room and bath seemed to welcome her with open arms.

Bob had left for New York and Nina seemed to need her as she used to before his return. Nina's friends remembered her with cordial greetings. It was soothing to the girl's harassed nerves to be in the stimulating, cheerful atmosphere Nina managed to create about her. Almost overnight Star had resumed all her former duties. Making and breaking Nina's complicated social engagements, serving the cocktails, helping Mrs. Epperson with the tiny decorative canapes.

She had a definite place in that house and there were no memories of Milton to haunt her. Also with her increased salary she was able to purchase the clothes she needed.

In spite of the fact that she was Nina's secretary, her status had indefinably changed. Nina treated her more than ever as a daughter. She even suggested that if Star wished she might accept invitations from her men friends. But this Star refused to do. She knew Nina too well to take advantage of an offer which might be withdrawn later. The writer's moods and bursts of generosity were too subject to change. In some cases it might be all right. In others—and Star would never know what constituted the difference—Nina would resent it. The wisest course, therefore, was to refuse. And she was rewarded by the increased affection and confidence of her employer, who confessed one night they sat before a fire in the writing-room fireplace that her own heart had been broken long ago.

"None of these men I am playing around with mean anything to me," Nina admitted, waving the amber cigarette holder. "I can understand how you feel, my dear, because for years I have been in love with a man I can't have."

It was difficult to imagine the vivacious Nina as the victim of a broken heart although Star had always suspected that none of the men who surrounded her meant anything to her.

"I was very young when Bob was born," Nina continued in a reminiscent mood. "And only thirty-five when I was left a widow. My marriage had not been a happy one so that it is not strange my freedom went to my head. The first thing I did was to fall head over heels in love with a man eight years younger than I am. That was five years ago, Star, but the strange part about it is he never knew it."

Thinking of her own situation, Star asked, "Why? Was he married?"

"Not at first. He used to take me out occasionally but it was never what could be called a romance. We were just friends so far as he knew, and in spite of every effort I made—some of them seem ridiculous now looking back on it—he could or would not see me in any other way. But I never stopped hoping."

"Until the day he actually married some one else I told myself the miracle might happen. It never did. After it was over I went into an emotional tailspin worthy of my most neurotic heroine but thank heavens he did not know about that either. To this day he has no idea how I felt about him."

Star said sympathetically, "I can imagine what you went through."

"That's when I adopted a new motto," Nina said brightly but there were tears in her gray eyes. "Would you like to hear it?"

"Very much."

"'Light loves stand clear of thunder'," Nina quoted softly.

Yes, Star thought. This gave her the key to much of Nina's nature which ha dbeen a mystery.

"I suppose it would be easier," she said. "But I'm afraid I could never do it."

"Oh, my dear," Nina protested. "I am not recommending such a course for you. You are much too young and beautiful. Eventually you'll either marry Bob or meet some one else. Your whole life is before you. Love isn't over at twenty."

"I'm not quite nineteen yet," Star admitted.

"All the more reason, then. I didn't tell you this so that you would follow my example, but so you would realize that I, too, know how a broken heart can hurt."

Star said gratefully, "I know, You're very kind."

"I've been very selfish," Nina disagreed. "But if there is ever any way I can make it up to you. . . ."

"Let's not talk about it," Star pleaded. "I told you I understood."

The conversation forced her to think about something besides her own troubles. Who would have dreamed that the sophisticated writer with her happy-go-lucky manner and easygoing ways could ever have suffered the way Star was suffering now?

After Star had retired, she began to wonder if one of the men who frequented Nina's house was this unnamed man. Nina had told her he was married now but most of the men who were frequent visitors at her home were unattached. Those who weren't came with their wives.

Suddenly an intuition made Star sit up in bed. Could Nina have meant Milton? Rapidly she counted back. He was 32 now, which would make him just eight years younger than Nina. Yes, it dovetailed perfectly. No wonder he didn't suspect it. It probably had never occurred to him he was so utterly without conceit. If he had ever had any confidence in his ability to attract women his experience with Jennifer would have destroyed it. Perhaps it wasn't Milton after all. But if it were, how strange that Nina and her secretary should both love the same man?

It was late before Star slept and she could imagine Nina lying awake pondering it too. Or had she confided in Star not suspecting the truth?

AUSTRALIANS WAIT TOURISTS

War Expected To Shift Travel Trend 'Down Under.'

SYDNEY, New South Wales—(INS)—Because of the war, Australia is looking forward to a tourist "boom" in 1940.

Thousands of Americans who normally would spend their holidays in Europe, are looking towards Australia.

Local tourist agencies estimate that 5,000 Americans alone, will come to Australia this year and spend at least $2,000,000.

Chief attractions are Australian kangaroos, Koala ("teddy") bears and Sydney oysters, to say nothing of Australia's scenic beauties.

In addition to a rush of American visitors, large numbers are expected to arrive from the Netherlands, East Indies, China, India and Singapore.

An 800-acre botanigal garden being developed near Phoenix, Ariz., will be the only one of it's kind in the world, housing several thousand exclusively desert plants.

FIND MODERN CRUSOE ON ISLE

Has Shaving Brush Made From Old Shotgun Shell, Seaweed.

CUEVAS ISLAND, Puerto Rico—(INS)—A Spanish Robinson Crusoe today lives in this deserted island off the southwestern coast of the U. S. Territory of Puerto Rico.

The only other human inhabitant is a darky corresponding to his man Friday. He also has a faithful dog.

His shaving brush is made from the shell of a 20-gauge shotgun, tufted with bristles of the sea cotton. He has a house without tables or chairs. His only accommodation for guests who might drop in on a fishing boat are six hammocks.

CZECHS GETTING NEW DICTIONARY

Linguists Compile Book of Words in Standard Usage.

PRAGUE—(AP)—A new standard dictionary of the current Czech language is under preparation at the Czech Academy of Sciences and Arts, the completion of which is actively supported by the protectorate government.

Prominent Czech linguists are at work sifting over six million documents relating to the peculiarities of their mother tongue. A special commission is busy collecting all new words and phrases which were coined in the past years and since have become an inseparable part of modern Czech.

AUTHOR GIVES WORD PICTURE OF REAL WAR

Allen's 2 New Stories, Views of Foreign Press on U. S. Added by Library.

Two new stories by Hervey Allen and the collected viewpoints of 15 press correspondents on the future of America are among the new books which were added to the Public library this week and which go into circulation Monday.

IT WAS LIKE THIS, by Hervey Allen, contains two long short stories of the Great War. "Report to Major Roberts" tells of four American companies cut off by the German barrage in the Allied retreat from the Marne in July, 1918. "Blood Lust" describes an American attack on the town of Fismette in early August, 1918. These stories are told that people may know what real war is like.

TURN EVER NORTHWARD, by Margaret Barrington is a story of divided loyalties set against a richly romantic background. The 200-year-old Thorauld family house in which Loulie and her cousin Justin grew up draws them to it and to each other.

UNCLE SNOWBALL, by Frances Frost is the story of the Hayward family on their New England farm. Uncle Snowball, an elderly man who came to live with the Haywards, was so very unorthodox that all the children of this large family adored him.

OTHER FICTION: I MUST RIDE ALONE, by Gregory; RENEGADE ROUNDUP, MacDonald; SONG AFTER MIDNIGHT, Miller; NEW ADVENTURES OF ELLERY QUEEN.

Three new books furnish us with the views of newspaper correspondents. YOU AMERICANS edited by B. P. Adams is a picture of American life as seen by the correspondents whose articles in the foreign press are responsible for what the rest of the world thinks of the people of these United States.

Fifteen press correspondents of Europe, Asia and South America tell us frankly where they think the American nation is headed socially, politically, and economically.

CHINA AT WAR, by Freda Utley is an account of conditions in China in war-time. Miss Utley spent an entire summer visiting the Chinese battlefronts and even marched with Chinese soldiers. While she praises the heroic efforts of patriots, she criticizes the many weaknesses she found in China.

NEWS IS MY JOB by Edna Booker is the report of another correspondent in war-torn China. This record covers a period of 18 years during which Miss Booker has traveled some 50,000 miles through China in search of news. Her book pictures Chinese civilization as well as its warfare.

OTHER NON-FICTION:

Books For Children

(Available at Mansfield Public Library)

Some of the books in the Children's Room were not intended to be read from cover to cover, but rather they serve to answer questions as they arise from time to time. The best of these books, however, are interesting enough to some boys and girls that they read them for pleasure.

MACHINES: AND THE MEN WHO MADE THE WORLD OF INDUSTRY, by Gertrude Hartman—Inventions and improvements which have made our great industries are easy to understand and less difficult to remember when we know the men who created them. It is hard to believe that most of these inventions had to be hidden and protected from the destruction of those who would have been most helped by them. This book covers the inventions from the spinning jenny to the largest new steam ships.

THE STORY OF WEAVING, by Louise Lamprey—Of special interest to junior and senior high school girls studying home economics or planning their own clothes comes this new history of weaving. It begins with baskets woven from vegetable fibers and ends with the new synthetic fabrics.

FAME OVER FOR 'QUINT' FAMILY

New Examination Reveals Just One Baby and Not Five Due for Florida Wife.

the pictures revealed that "nothing other than a normal birth is expected." He said his newspaper had "offered to absorb the expenses of Mrs. Callahan's medical treatment and hospitalization when it became evident that, unless some directing agency stepped in, well-meaning but naturally curious persons might cause great damage to her peace of mind and well-being."

The Herald, Knight said, would continue to pay for her medical car "just as though the examination had supported the previous belief that she was to be the mother of quintuplets." It was understood that the newspaper would arrange some other living quarters for the Callahans than the $3.75 a week section of the cottage they share with two other families. The husband earns about $15 a week as a woodworker. The main thing he got out of the fleeting fame was time off from work yesterday to visit the hospital.

The story of quintuplets started Feb. 28 when Mrs. Callahan, 22-year-old bride of eight months expecting her first child, asked advice of Mrs. Ralph Kay, who lives in the same cottage. Mrs. Kay had suggested that she "get X-rayed." Mrs. Callahan had had no experience with X-ray machines and when she went to the hospital for an examination and was placed behind a fluoroscope, she thought she had been "X-rayed." A fluoroscope would not reveal the fetus in a womb, doctors said. The technician who examined Mrs. Callahan remarked that she was abnormally large and might have a multiple birth. Mrs. Callahan was sure he had said about "five children"—she never used the word quintuplets herself.

She went home and told Mrs. Kay she was going to have five children. Mrs. Kay told somebody else who told the milkman. By this week the news was all over the Callahans' part of town. Then the storm of publicity. Then the authentic X-ray picture that put the Callahans back in obscurity.

WAIT CROMWELL REPLY TO HULL

Capital Observers Wonder If Rebuke Will Cause Minister to Resign Post.

Rep. George H. Tinkham (R., Mass.) called either for Cromwell's recall from Canada or his impeachment by the house. This criticism, combined with what some state department officials considered the "cavalier attitude" of the envoy in saying in his speech he might be "sticking his neck out," were believed responsible for Hull's drastic action.

In other branches of the government, public criticism of an official by his superior is not extraordinary. But the state department—oldest and most dignified of the government agencies—rarely washes its dirty linen in public. Therefore Hull's open rebuke to Cromwell was considered drastic punishment.

Even semi-official British observers in Washington, although naturally pleased with the sentiments Cromwell expressed, nevertheless were shocked by his frankness as spokesman for a neutral nation, officially friendly to Germany.

In considering Cromwell's case, some observers recalled that Joseph C. Grew, U. S. ambassador to Japan, last fall delivered a very strong speech in which he warned the Japanese that America resented their attack on China and American rights there. Not a word of criticism came from Washington.

There were, however, these significant differences between the speeches: Grew's had as its central theme an appeal to Japan to better its relations with America, and was made with the consent of the state department and White House. Cromwell's remarks were not seen here, officials said, until they appeared in the newspapers.

Congress Probe of Securities Commission Predicted

HIGH-RANKING DEMS SAID TO FAVOR INQUIRY

Hold Conferences, Criticize 'Harsh Rules,' Stifling of Investments.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON—The powerful securities and exchange commission may be the next New Deal agency to be subjected to a congressional investigation, it was disclosed today.

High-ranking house Democrats—including some who forced the investigation of the National Labor Relations board—have held conferences on the subject, with indications that a resolution for a special investigation soon may be laid before the house

The movement assumed more than ordinary importance because it includes some veteran house members who sponsored the Smith committee investigation into the labor board. This inquiry may result in revision of the Wagner labor act this session.

Criticism of the SEC embraces two separate phases One is that harsh rules of the SEC are stifling investment in business enterprises and therefore are retarding business expansion

A second criticism is that examiners and other officials of the SEC have adopted an "arrogant" attitude in their conduct of hearings through the country. This charge is similar to one which brought on the labor board investigation.

SEC Chairman Jerome Frank, it is known, has been informed that there is widespread criticism of the operation of his agency in both senate and house. He is expected to hold conferences in an effort to allay criticism and avoid a possible sweeping investigation.

The only organized congressional drive on the SEC comes from western state members, who charge that SEC requirements make impossible the launching of new, small mining enterprises. Western congressmen have carried this complaint to the SEC, charging that business expansion is being retarded.

Another group in congress contends that the SEC, by making issuance of stock and securities issues expensive has discouraged formation of small enterprises and is discouraging "venture" capital

The movement in the house for an investigation was revealed after Rep Cox (D) Georgia, a leading member of the house rules committee, served a warning on the sec that it is rapidly becoming unpopular with members.

Rep Bruce Barton (R) New York, widely known advertising executive, said the SEC has eradicated many abuses and protected the investor, but has dismally failed to promote the flow of capital into private industry.

EIGHT DAYS LEFT

Only Half of County's Personal Tax Bill Paid.

With less than half of the county's personal tax paid for the first half of the year, Auditor Norman L Wolfe warned property owners today that only eight days remain in which to pay taxes without penalty.

The auditor said only 2,000 returns had been filed today and payments amounted to $29,422. Approximately 5,000 property owners must pay personal taxes.

Real estate tax receipts, however, are coming in much better. The total today amounted to $305.424. Payments will be received until April 10 without penalty.

COMPOSERS' RADION LICENSING PLAN DRAWS FIRE FROM N.A.B.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK—The new licensing plan for radio stations announced by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers effective next Jan. 1 was denounced today by Neville A Miller president of the National Association of Broadcasters, as one which will double the cost to the radio industry and perpetuate existing abuses.

Miller said the demands must be resisted by the broadcasting industry as a matter of "life and death" and that in his opinion they will strengthen the support for Broadcast Music, Inc., created by the radio stations to foster new creative talent in opposition to ASCAP.

ASCAP, Miller charged, was again "attempting to take advantage of its monopoly of popular music to impose unfair methods and rates of payment of broadcasters."

Instead of paying a blanket 5 per cent. the radio industry was already paying ASCAP $5,000,000 a year which, he said, amounted to more than two thirds of its total revenue. The new plan, he said, will boost that amount 100 per cent.

STREET REPAIR WORK STARTS

City Workers Begin Patching Thoroughfares Damaged by Severe Winter.

City workmen today began the task of repairing city streets that have been ravaged during the winter by sub-zero temperatures and bursting water mains.

Charles Hebel, superintendent of streets, said one crew of workmen started asphalt patching and that Monday a second gang of workmen would begin repairs on brick pavement.

The maintenance project which Hebel described as the "most comprehensive" in years due to the severe winter, will take at least six weeks to complete.

Asphalt patching was started on North Main street this morning. The crew then moved to West Third street and then will go to Bowman street, Marion avenue, Glessner and Lexington avenues in order to smooth out the main thoroughfares first, Hebel said.

The crew Monday will start work on West First street, between South Mulberry and South Walnut streets.

ICKES GOES TO TEXAS TO CHECK GARNER POWER

Secretary Will Sound Out Sentiment on Third Term for Roosevelt.

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes, the New Deal's "hatchet-man," will invade the home state of Vice-President John N. Garner next week to sound out third term sentiment in Texas, it was learned today.

This move by Ickes will be the first public step taken by the New Deal to undermine Garner in his home state Heretofore, there has been only sporadic third term talk by a few Texans unfriendly to Garner Now it is to be Ickes' mission to unite the third termers in Texas and to determine whether they have a chance of capturing any Texas delegates from Garner.

Texas Democrats will elect their convention delegates at a party convention May 28.

The purpose of the Ickes invasion of Texas was disclosed just after the interior Secretary declared neither Garner nor Postmaster General James A. Farley can win the Democratic nomination. He put Security Administrator Paul V. McNutt, whom he previously attacked as lacking liberal ideas, in the same losing class.

The New Deal assault on Garner in his home state was reported to have been planned at a conference here some weeks ago between Ickes, under-secretary of the Interior Alvin Wirtz, a Texan, and Thomas G. Corcoran, brain-truster who is leading the third term strategists. The movement has as its allies in Texas former Governor James Ferguson, Mayor Tom Miller of Austin, Mayor Maury Maverick of San Antonio, former Secretary of State Edward Clark and Jerry Sadler, 31-year-old member of the state railroad commission who hopes to be the next governor

Rep. Lyndon Johnson, only member of the Texas delegation in the house to refuse endorsement of Garner, is a member of the third term board of strategy. He recently returned from a visit to Texas where he surveyed the prospects of staging a successful revolt against Garner.

BRITISH RAID BALTIC SHIPPING

Sub Invades Mined Seas to Sink 5,000-Ton Vessel; New Drive Looms.

man crew of 36 also was warned, the British reported, asserting this was in contrast to the sinking of perhaps seven Danish merchant ships by U-boats without warnings in the last three days.

The British submarine commander warned the Heddernhein's crew that the ship would be sunk. The 36 men took to lifeboats and were then taken ashore by Danish coast guardsmen—all but the first engineer, who, a United Press Copenhagen dispatch said, was made prisoner by the submarine.

British warships had captured or caused the scuttling of numerous German merchantmen in this war, but none previously had been sunk by a British submarine.

On Dec. 23 Britain claimed the sinking of a German cruiser of the 6,000 ton Koeln class at the mouth of the Elbe river. Germany denied it.

Germany heavily mined the Kattegat in the first days of the war and warned that the waters were navigable only with the aid of German pilots.

Crew of German Ore Ship Tells of Warning.

SKAGEN, Denmark — (U.P.) — Thirty-six members of the crew of the German freighter Heddernheim, torpedoed by a British submarine at the entrance to the Baltic sea last night, passed through here today en route to Germany.

The survivors said that the British submarine gave them 15 minutes to man their lifeboats. The Heddernheim was torpedoed after the members of the crew had rowed a short distance from it.

It was reported without confirmation that the Hedderheim carried a cargo of iron ore.

Moscow Radio Attacks 'Reactionary Swedes.'

COPENHAGEN—(INS)—A Moscow radio broadcast launched a violent attack today against "reactionary parties in Sweden" which were accused of aiming at an "anti-Russian defense union" among Sweden, Finland and Norway.

The Russian broadcaster expressed doubt, however, whether Finland woud be drawn into such a combination or would "prefer to obtain favors by living at peace with her great neighbor"—meaning the Soviet union.

(Editor's Note: Talks aimed at establishment of a defense alliance among Finland, Sweden and Norway were revived by the Finnish government after the Russo-Finnish hostilities ended. Several days ago the Russian government warned Finland against entering such an alliance on grounds it would contravene the terms of the Moscow peace agreement.)

The Moscow broadcaster added that Moscow understood Sweden had long been planning an anti-Russian military policy.

ard Daladier. The cabinet had given approval to his statement, promising action in the war against Germany.

The ministers met twice. After a private meeting with Reynaud at the Elysee palace they reassembled as a council of ministers under President Albert Lebrun.

Without making public his reasons, Jean Le Cour Grandmaison, resigned as under secretary of the navy after being in Reynaud's new government only overnight. He is considered an "extreme rightist."

Reynaud's first big job as successor to resigned Premier Edouard Daladier was to ease France past her first political crisis of the war by overcoming opposition which theratened the administra- even before it was fully launched.

Both the press and parliament lobbies criticized his cabinet's size, its leftwing complexion and its large number of hold-overs from Daladier's regime.

Instead of a compact government, Reynaud produced a cabinet of 23 ministers—three more than Daladier's—despite the clamor for one of wieldy size.

It failed also to meet demands for a national union government including all parties from right to left.

On both of these counts, however, Reynaud went part way to satisfy critics of his predecessor.

He created a "war committee," a kind of inner cabinet which will meet several times a week. Besides Reynaud, in the dual capacity of premier and foreign minister, its members are Chautemps, vice premier; Daladier, national defense minister; Georges Mandel, minister of colonies; Raoul Dautry, minister of armament; and Lucien Lamoureux, minister of finance.

And he broadened the base of the cabinet, taking in members of eight political parties among whom were three Socialists. The large Socialist group had no representation in the Daladier cabinet.

SHELBY—Shelby high school today was awarded first place honors in the district one-act play contest of the Ohio High School Speech league held last week at Ashland, it was learned here today.

The one-act play, "Murder in Hollywood," presented by the Shelby students at the contest was given a "tie" rating with Ashland high school's play on the first ballot of the judges at the contest. The second decision gave Ashland the title, and today following another changed decision, Shelby's play was announced as the winner, Speech Supervisor Leonard Linsenmayer disclosed.

SPORTSMEN TOLD BIG JOB'S TO PRESERVE HAUNTS OF WILDLIFE

"The biggest job facing us today is to preserve homes and favorite haunts of our wild game," John C. Friday, president of the Richland County Fish and Game Protective Association told 500 members and guests at the annual Sportsmen's dinner at the Moose home last night.

"One of our habits has been to destroy possible places of protection for wild life, but the association is striving to get every farmer and sportsman to cooperate in saving these haunts," Friday said.

Last night's affair was one of the largest ever held by the county association. Friday introduced the officials of the club at the conclusion of his talk.

Floyd Dent, Area Boy Scout executive, who is a director of the association, told how Boy Scouts help in the conservation work.

Mayor W. J. Locke spoke on the successful efforts of the Richland county club, and then presented V. B. Gray, Rod and Gun editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Gray, who has been a frequent speaker on the county organization's programs, spoke briefly and showed slides and motion pictures of his fishing expedition into Canada last fall.

Atty' John L. Catlett, was the toastmaster, and after opening the program presented Art Hilborn, governor of the Loyal Order of Moose, Mansfield No. 341, who extended a welcome to the gathering.

Fish and Game association members introduced by Friday were: Ed. Fenton, vice president; Catlett, secretary; Howard R. Hyatt, treasurer; Roscoe McGinty, membership secretary; Dale Mowry, licenses secretary; Joe Heilman, man, director of the League of Ohio Sportsmen; Dent; Fred Frankeberger and William Miller, county directors; A. A. Miller, chairman of the Bird dog committee.

Group singing, conducted by John Grabler opened the program, while Smart's accordion band entertained before the session started.

IRVIN S. COBB SAYS:

"Thanks for the memories"

"WHEN you Pabst people put the silk Blue Ribbon back on the Pabst bottle, you did millions of us old-timers a mighty fine turn.

"Because you call to our minds a whole stream of golden memories—memories of the good times we used to enjoy over glasses of as satisfying a beer as ever was brewed or, I reckon, ever will be brewed.

"You make us think of happy hours at fish fries and barbecues and picnics and in the home, where your most delectable and always dependable product was the favorite refreshment; and we think of glamorous evenings at Rector's and Delmonico's — of oyster suppers and bubbling welsh rarebits and silver chafing dishes and mugs of cold, clear Pabst.

"Accordingly we have welcomed the news that again the silk Blue Ribbon, like a badge of honor, is on the Pabst bottle, to remind us of those pleasant by-gone days, and to be a renewed guarantee of solace and comfort through the years and generations to come—THE BEER OF GOOD CHEER.

"So once more, thanks for the memories. And thanks, too, for the certainty that the silk Blue Ribbon will continue to be a proof and a pledge of high excellence in the quality; a symbol to show that when we call for Pabst we'll know exactly what we're getting—A BREW WITH A GREAT PAST, A BREW WITH A GREAT FUTURE."

Gratefully yours,

our generation about cross-bearing. We have not been willing to suffer for Christ. We want ease, comfort, security without paying for it. Our people have not lacked in ideals and noble purpose and at heart we have wanted the Kingdom of God to

We have made the cross little more than a beautiful emblem to wear around our necks or to bedeck church spires. We like these emblems but they do not do anything to us.

"We must have spiritual recovery before we can have the sign of life which is greatly needed. If life is to be victorious it must be built on the principle of unselfishness. It is a hard lesson, but one that needs to be taught."

Before nearly 1,500 persons in the First Lutheran church, Rev. Braker asserted that "Christ said something great and lasting by dying on the cross. There is still nothing that has solved the riddle of injustice, selfishness, greed, lust and hatred quite like Calvary.

"Real men cannot feel comfortable in the face of that cross as long as their sin remains. Christ's death had to do with sin. In history where dying has become common, there is nothing like one Man's death that has become our deliverance from sin. That's another way a man may die, and because Christ died that way, we live."

Devotions at the services in the First Presbyterian church were led by Rev. Paul H. Saleste, pastor of St. John's Evangelical church. Rev. R. L. Foulke of the Central Methodist church was the devotional leader at the First Lutheran services.

Combined choirs directed by Mrs. Claude F. Ewing sang two numbers at the First Lutheran church services. "Since By Man Came Death," and "Behold the Lamb of God" from Handel's "Messiah." Lawrence Frank played the organ accompaniment.

City and county offices and Mansfield stores were closed from 11:30 to 1 p. m. in observance of Good Friday. City schools were dismissed at noon today for a week's Easter vacation.

Three-hour devotional services began at noon today at Grace Episcopal church in charge of Rev. Charles E. Byrer. Ten churches in the city will hold Good Friday services tonight, most of them starting at 7:30 p. m. The services will be held at the First Lutheran church, St. Mark's, St. Matthews, and St. Paul Lutheran churches. MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, MARCH 22, 1940.

Day For Religious Thought

LIKE that dark day which it commemorates, this Good Friday comes to a troubled world in which the people of many nations are bowed in grief over the death of loved ones or by their own pitiful plight.

But as Good Friday is quickly followed by joyous observance of Easter, might it not also be that a divine influence may soon be felt throughout the world which will bring a resurrection of hope and a strengthening of the bonds of brotherhood among people of all nations.

Possibly because of concentration of thought among the millions of persons to whom it has special significance, observance of Good Friday tends to gain more widespread recognition of religious obligations than any other of the year's holy days.

This is seen locally, and in practically all cities and smaller communities, in the mid-day cessation of business and in the large attendance at special services at which the significance of the occasion is emphasized.

Among the blessings enjoyed by Americans is their recognized and protected right of religious freedom—the privilege of worshiping God in accordance with the dictates of their own conscience. It is well to keep in mind, however, that this nation was founded on a belief in God and that all national leadership has made willing acknowledgment of dependence on divine aid.

Futile experiments intended to eliminate God have been made in the past, by individuals and by men temporarily in positions of power, and this is again being done in some European countries, but such efforts must result in eventual failure and final world-wide acceptance of the basic principles of religion and recognition of a Supreme Being, who, in the English language, is known as God.

The lenten season, and more especially Good Friday, is a fitting time for reflection on the spiritual phase of human life—without which mankind could not have arisen above what are designated as "the lower animals."

Husbands as Household Helpers

THE GOVERNMENT is not the only penetrating questioner. The Association of University Women has been asking wives some questions which prospective husbands may resent. Their survey brought out the fact that 57 per cent of the husbands who had been brought up on farms helped their wives with dishes or other housework. Of the city-bred husbands only 40 per cent did so.

This is a little hard to understand. Farm boys surely have less early training in kitchen tasks than city boys. Chores begin early in the day and must be done again in the evening, with other outside work in between. The farm boy isn't usually in the house much during the day to help.

Perhaps that is the reason he's more willing to help in the house after he's married. He has never developed any complexes on the subject, for one thing. For another, any indoor job must seem fairly pleasant in some kinds of weather to a fellow who has always had to do outdoor jobs regardless of rain, snow, howling wind, or extremes of temperature.

Anticipating Quintuplets

STRANGE stories found places on Page 1 of yesterday's paper—stories which reveal a few of the complications of living and difficult problems sometimes faced.

Attention was suddenly centered on a young wife in Miami, Fla., when an x-ray examination was reported to have disclosed that she might soon become the mother of quintuplets.

Because of this possibility she is freed from responsibility of caring for her one-room home and is being given much pre-natal attention. One baby at a time is quite an ordinary affair—even in one-room homes. But groups of five arrive only once in 57,000,000 births—and that's something, as the Dionnes can tell you.

The other story told of a mother in Mt. Clemens, Mich., who confessed that she burned her baby to death because "he was too hard to care for."

Odd how little public attention is paid to the baby who comes alone and how much interest is displayed when five make the trip together.

Union Leader Advises Workers

HOWEVER tolerant the public attitude toward intoxicants may have become in the years since repeal of prohibition and return of legalized liquor traffic, it is just as well that young people be occasionally reminded of the attitude of employers toward persons made undependable by drinking.

Such a reminder is found in the advice recently given to members of his union by Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers of America, but equally applicable to everyone who has a job—or who expects to find and hold a job of any kind.

"Whatever else you may be guilty of," advised Mr. Tobin, "don't be guilty of imbibing any kind of stimulants or intoxicating liquor during your hours of work. That is an unpardonable sin."

As for drinking "after hours"—well, your life is your own, says the union leader, "but you had better remember to keep yourself fit for your job the next day."

Bid for More Passengers

EASTERN railroads follow the example of the western roads and cut fares for round-trips. The rate will be less than two cents a mile for long distances. It represents a compromise reached after weeks of consultation between officials asking for a higher rate and those wanting still bigger cuts.

Better trains and lower fares in the west have brought heavier passenger travel and increased revenues. Many people nowadays like to drive their own cars on trips and find it an economical way for families to travel together. But many others who prefer to ride in comfortable railroad coaches, particularly since air-conditioning of passenger trains has become quite common. Bringing coach fares within the reach of more people who are potential patrons of eastern railroads, as well as those west of Chicago, seems like sensible action.

The title borne by the youthful lama of Tibet is, "Tender Glory Mighty In Speech Excellent Intellect Absolute Wisdom"—which should give the lodge brethren some new ideas along the line of impressive designations for high muck-a-mucks.

This is another year in which it appears wiser to "See America First," instead of venturing a trip to Darkest Europe.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—If you have an income - tax - payment hang over, be of good cheer. You may get some of it back, with interest.

About 160,000 persons and companies got around $60,000,000 in taxes and interest back from the government last year . . . and you may be one of the lucky ones this time.

If the government's got some of your money it doesn't deserve, don't worry about it, either, because the Internal Revenue department is paying about the best interest in the country today—6 per cent. Where, in these parlous times, can you invest money with a company or bank as safe as the United States treasury and get a return like that?

However, that story about Wall Streeters making intentional errors on their returns just to get their money invested with the government at 6 per cent (when U. S. treasury notes are only paying around 1½ per cent, and long term bonds only 2 to 3 per cent) is all hooey.

In the first place, any person who would be willing to risk not getting his back for a measly 6 per cent would be too dumb to have made enough money to pay an income tax. Tax refunds come out of tax hearings or the discoveries of Internal Revenue checkers. And when the checkers discover that something has to be paid back or hearings are scheduled on protested payments, you can bet at any odds you can get, that the tax return of the person involved is gone over with a fine-tooth comb. And the chances are pretty good that, under such scrutiny, Uncle Sam will discover the fellow didn't pay all the tax he should have.

In the second place, any barefaced padding of an income tax return might have an amazing repercussion. It might land the padder in the jailhouse. Paying the government too much money is a crime if it's done wtih intent to take advantage of those generous interest rates. And if the gentlemen of Internal Revenue could prove it, the padder would do a penitentiary stretch.

88 Cents Started It.

IF, HOWEVER, you have any good reason to think that the Internal Revenue department has collected income tax from you unjustly, take a lesson from James J. Sweeney.

Mr. Sweeney is a jovial Irishman from Boston. Mixed in with Mr. Sweeney's fighting Irish blood are some tenacious English corpuscles. The inspiration of Bunker hill, as he puts it, has kept that blood racing at goodly speed ever since Mr. Sweeney can remember.

Several years ago, Mr. Sweeney came to Washington to become assistant to the attorney general. In 1938, the District of Columbia assessor (who is one of Uncle Sam's assessors, too, you know) took a look at the record, and assessed Mr. Sweeney 88 cents for the time he'd been here.

Mr. Sweeney went to the assessor's office and protested that he was a resident of Boston, not Washington. A subordinate there told Mr. Sweeney, "Persons who don't like our laws, don't have to stay here." That was a mistake. Perhaps he was misled by the smile on Mr. Sweeney's Irish map.

Not only did Mr. Sweeney burn the young man up with words that would have eaten through abbestos, but Mr. Sweeney went into action—legal action.

He got himself an attorney—"a lawyer who represents himself has a fool for a client," he says.

Mr. Sweeney Wins.

THE other day Mr. Sweeney's two-year fight came to an end with a knockout. And it was not Mr. Sweeney on the floor. The United States Court of Appeals held that a government employe, residing in Washington, but "domiciled" elsewhere, is not subject to the district's levy on intangibles. That not only gave Mr Sweeney his 88 cents back, but set a precedent for about 23,000 other government employes.

Mr. Sweeney says that even if it had cost him the $1,500 or so that it would have a layman, it would have been worth every cent of it.

So, if you're mad at the Internal Revenue department and think you can prove they ain't done right by you, go to it. You may be another Mr. Sweeney—and it's Mr. Sweeneys that make this country worth living in.

MISS POLLY TIX, MODELS 1940 STYLES

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—On Broadway, song pluggers are thicker than flies in fly time. You can close your eyes and reach out your hand and touch one. Let's touch three or four now and see what we get.

We get Bob Stone right off the bat. We get Norm Foley, and Mack Goldman, and Eddy Wolpin. They're on the job tonight as all song pluggers are on the job every night.

We get Stone, Foley, Goldman and Wolpin because this happens to be their night to have dinner at our hotel. Tomorrow they'll go to some other hotel, but don't let that bother you. Four other song pluggers will be here to take their place.

A SONG plugger's dream of heaven is a "major plug." A major plug means having your song played by a dance orchestra between 5 o'clock in the afternoon and 1 o'clock in the morning over either NBC or CBS.

Let's say you work for a firm that has published a song called "How Were Your Dreams Last Night?" Of course there isn't any song by that name. That is just to illustrate a point.

The more times you get that song played over the two major broadcasting companies, the more money you make. Either of these networks hits an audience of millions. When a million people listen to a song, some of them are going to buy it. The more times it is played, or "plugged," the higher the sales chart climbs.

So, every night around dinner time the song pluggers move in on the hotel dining rooms where the big dance bands play. Usually they are alone. They come in and sit down and kill a lot of time over dinner, checking up on their own numbers, checking up on the opposition.

THAT'S what Bob Stone is doing right now. He is checking up. He is sitting so close to the orchestra stand that he could reach out and pull Blue Barron's leg. Mr. Barron is the orchestra leader. Stone represents the Sam Fox publishing firm, and the song he is working on is "Tumbling Tumble Weeds."

Four or five tables away are Mack Goldman, of the Harms company and Norm Foley, who represents Witmark. Goldman is interested in "In A Little Dutch Garden." Foley wants to hear "Make Love With a Guitar."

Finally, there is Eddy Wolpin. Mr. Wolpin is a Chappell man, and he has a couple of winners just now. When he hears the orchestra play "All The Things You Are" it makes him very happy. When he hears "Do I Love You," that makes him happy too. If he can remain reasonably happy throughout most of the week, his company will prosper, and indirectly he will too.

This may not seem fair to you, but money behind a song will make it just as quickly as talent. If you have a number that is a beauty, and another only half as pretty, the proper exploitation will make a hit of the mediocre song while the really beautiful one dies. That's why song pluggers are important. That's why, if you are a composer, it is important to have them on your side.

Listen, World!

To Those Who Hate.

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

"GOOD FRIDAY" is a tragic tradition to you if you are a Christian. A savage incident to you, in case you are not interested in spiritual matters. But, Christian or pagan, have you ever stopped to think what that incident really meant, really means in terms of human emotion?

Have you ever dared to think that you, in your spite and intolerance, may have mingled with that blood-mad mob that stormed Golgotha? Have you ever faced the ghastly fact that Good Friday did not cease 2,000 years ago, but that its horror screams today and that your own snarl may mingle with its clamor?

They snarled that night before the crucifixion. The city stank with their hate.

At last they had him—this fellow the high priests were out to get. They had him! They'd fix him! They'd show him! They'd let him see he couldn't monkey with their fights!

How had he monkeyed? What had he done? They didn't know. They didn't care. What did all that matter? Why get fussy about details when a guy had a chance to scream with hate? Hate was reason enough for anything. Getting hunk—that was reason enough to blot out any person. So why not start the party going?

How about that business of a week before when they'd cheered him . . . called him the Savior . . . waved the palms and shouted themselves hoarse? Oh, well, that was a week before. That was another time. But this was another kind of rumpus. A sweller kind. A kind that smelled of blood . . . that got a fellow where he really lived.

Why care for reasons, or worry about what was right or wrong, when you could get the stink of blood racin' through ya . . . and the lust of blood boiling in ya . . . and the sight o' blood dripping from a cross? Hate—that was what a guy really understood. Blood—that was what a guy wanted. Never matter about reasons or justice. Just get that blood.

THEY snarled that night before they crucified the Christ. They stank with their hate. They snarl today and the whole world reeks.

And the snarl is the same. And the hate is the same. And the crucifixion is the same. And the shame on our supposedly civilized souls is as thick and as black and as rotten.

I am of those who presume to call themselves "Christians." How dare we do it! How dare we pretend to weep over that cross when daily we sell our Christs for thirty pieces of spite . . . or nail His feet with our cruelty and intolerance!

I am no preacher. I too have joined in the blood-mad mob, to hunt some hurt thing down. I too have betrayed the Truth with a smiling kiss. And yet, in the awful pause of this week, a brief light comes. And by its radiance I know this to be true—

All hate is evil. All vengeance and greed are vile.

There are no noble crucifixions. Brutality is brutality whether its victim be Jew or Gentile . . . Born in Bethlehem or Berlin, Moscow or London.

There is no difference in the shedding of blood . . . or the selling of the Holy Ghost. And whether you kill in the name of England or Germany, France or Russia, America or Japan—or simply knife your neighbor with a vicious tongue—you are still part of the bloody mob that snarled at the foot of the cross.

THERE IS ONLY ONE CROSS—THE CROSS OF MAN'S BRUTALITY. AND EVERY TORTURED MAN THAT HANGS UPON IT, WHETHER HE BE GENTILE, JEW OR PAGAN, IS A PART OF THE CRUCIFIED CHRIST. AND YOU—IF YOU SELL HIM OUT—AND NAIL HIM THERE—ARE JUDAS ISCARIOT. AND A MURDERER.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(Editor's Note—The Washington Merry-Go-Round's Brass Ring this week is warded to each of the eight crack naval pilots due to be let out this June despite their notable records.)

WASHINGTON—At the urgent request of the navy, congress included in the emergency national defense appropriation, passed early in the session, $2,000,000 for the recall of 500 retired officers to active duty. Later, before a house appropriations subcommittee, Rear Admiral John H. Towers, chief of the Bureau of Aeronautics, declared that the navy lacked enough pilots to man all the planes it will receive under its vast expansion program.

One of the officers recalled is a 66-year-old veteran who was retired in 1914. But, despite this urgent need and clamor for trained personnel, the navy in June will let out a group of eight of its most experienced flyers. The men to be dropped are at the height of their powers, with world reputations, and fill some of the most important flying commands in the Navy.

If that doesn't make sense, neither do the reasons behind it. They are just as fantastic. There are two reasons:

First, and the root cause, is the navy promotion system. A selection board, made up of non-flying brass hats, slated these ace pilots for the junk pile ostensibly because they have had no experience in commanding surface craft; in other words, because they aren't seadogs. But the real reason was that they are not Annapolis graduates. They came into the service during the World war as enlisted men, and though all are university educated, they don't bear the Annapolis brand.

Second reason, and the most idiotic feature of the whole affair, is that a bill to save the pilots is blocked by a furious feud between the chairmen of the two congressional naval committees, arising out of the unyielding insistence of one of them, paunchy Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts, on using the measure to keep a personal friend in office as a marine general.

Me-First Statesmanship.

WHEN the selection board ordered the eight flying commanders retired, widespread criticism arose in aviation and congressional circles. Early last year, with the approval of the president, Representative Melvin Maas, ranking Republican member of the house naval committee and a wartime pilot, drafted a bill designed to keep these flyers in the navy.

This measure, H. R. 4929, was passed by both the house and senate. In the spring it was sent to a joint conference committee to iron out differences between the two chambers. That was ten months ago, and the bill is still in conference. The reason is Walsh's determination to use the legislation to force the retention of his good friend Brig. Gen. James J. Meade, who was retired from the Marine Corps last June 30 at the age of 57 because of physical unfitness.

When H. R. 4929 was before the senate, Walsh, as chairman of the naval affairs committee, slipped in a provision to save his friend's scalp. At the first conference meeting the house members, headed by Naval Committee Chairman Carl Vinson of Georgia, demanded the elimination of the "Meade rider." Walsh refused and a heated row ensued. Only two other meetings have been held since then, both ending in fiery blow-ups between the rival naval chairmen.

Vinson has offered to compromise by giving Meade the rank and pay of a retired major general, but Walsh angrily refused to make any concession. He is so irate that he won't talk to Vinson, and has served notice that he will attend no more conference meetings unless assured Vinson will back down. And that's where the matter rests.

Unless by June some way is found to break this deadlock, one senator's private pique will cost the country the services of eight of its greatest naval aviators—at a time when the navy is clamoring for more personnel and tens of millions of dollars are being spent to build up the nation's air defenses.

Ace Flyers.

EACH of the eight commanders has a notable flying record with more than 5,000 hours in the air. They have performed hazardous missions, won many honors for U. S. aviation, and are unequalled in their field. Outstanding among them are:

Dave Rittenhouse, winner of the 1923 Schneider (speed) trophy in England and other races, rated the top fighting-plane ace in the Navy. Now on duty as navy inspector at the Grumman aircraft factory.

Harold J. Brow, another racing pilot, did much pioneer flying including service on the Langley, first U. S. navy aircraft carrier. Now commanding officer of the Alameda, Cal., naval air station.

Andrew Crinkley, another aerial pioneer on the Langley, made first round trip across the U. S. in a seaplane. Now commander of the navy's four-engine bomber used as flagplane by Admiral Arthur Cook, C. O. of the aircraft scouting force, who draws pay as a pilot but is not permitted to take off or land a ship.

R. D. Lyon, holder of seaplane endurance record in 1926, made first night landing on the Langley, won special citation by secretary of the navy for outstanding service. Now directs training of student pilots at the navy's great Pensacola, Fla., flying school.

Cyrus Simard, chief instructor at aerial navigation school as far back as 1919, took leading part in plane catapult experiments on USS California. Now operations officer at San Diego naval air station.

B. J. Connell, pilot of first plane to fly the Pacific, from San Francisco to Honolulu. Now engineering officer at the naval aircraft factory in Philadelphia.

Non-Flying Admirals.

IN STRIKING contrast to the brilliant records of these crack pilots are the non-aerial qualifications of the "flying" brass hats who command them. With the exception of Admiral Towers, a non-Annapolis wartime aviator who was made chief of the aeronautics bureau by Roosevelt over the heads of the old cliquc, not one of the so-called "flying admirals" is allowed to take off or land a plane.

Each has assigned to him a "safety" pilot who actually operates the ship, although the admirals draw $4,000 a year in flight pay—which means being flown four hours a month in a special plane, by a special pilot on clear days.

During the recent joint army-navy war games on the west coast, General George Marshall, army chief of staff, not only flew to the maneuvers but observed them by plane. Later he flew to Honolulu and back on another military mission. Marshall is not a flying officer and draws no flying pay.

Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations, did not fly to these games. He didn't go at all. And Vice Admiral Charles Blakeley, who as commander of the aircraft batttle force(consisting of all the aircraft carriers and their flying squadrons) holds the No. 1 aviation post in the navy, also did not fly in the maneuvers in which his command took a vital part.

Blakeley didn't even go to sea on his flagship, the Carrier Yorktown. When she put out to participate in the games, which the highest officer of the army considered so important that he flew non-stop across the country to witness them, Blakeley remained on shore at his home in Coronado.

Although titular top navy flyer, Blakeley has never flown in a fast fighting ship, has never landed on a carrier at night, has never been up 20,000 feet, has never dropped a live bomb, and hasn't fired a machine gun since he left the Pensacola school. In the air service he is widely credited with an actual dislike of flying.

It was in 1938, while Blakeley was commander of the aircraft scouting force, that seven of its $200,000 long-range bombers crashed into the sea with a loss of 51 flyers. At the time of the tragedy, Blakeley was at his home in Coronado.

His flagship, at that time the Carrier Langley, was participating in the maneuvers but he was not on it. Ordered to Honolulu, the scene of the disaster, Blakeley made the trip on the luxury liner Lurline.

Last December, when he came to Washington to sit as a member of the selection board, Flying Admiral Blakeley did not fly, traveled instead by train on an eight-cents-a-mile government allowance.

March Weather

(A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

BEFORE I was up I heard the rain and sleet against the windows. Then it grew colder. At dawn the entire landscape wore a glare of ice. The withered grass blades glistened in the early light and snapped like brittle ringing glass when I stepped upon them. The wide branched maples checked their armored glaze with tiny cracks as they bent stiffly with crunching grudging acknowledgment in the wind.

The hens saw me and several hurried toward me from their sleeping quarters. They reached the glare beyond the overshoot of the barn and without warning their feet slipped out from under them. They slid on sides and tails to the rough edge of the old strawstack, squawking in bewilderment. It was their first tobogganing experience. Two pigeons landed on the metal barn roof and slid down nearly to the eaves before resuming wing. The neighbor's hound came for his usual morning visit. He reached the bank below the house and slipped half way down it on his back. At the border of the pond he scrambled up, whined, and started off toward home with his tail drooping.

The graveled highway had the slickest coat of all. The school bus wore heavy chains upon its dual wheels and even then found it difficult to stay in the middle track. Large white etchings showed where the broad chains had left their mark upon the solid ice. It was two hours before it was safe to venture on the road.

By evening the sky was overcast again and darkness came early. The damp cold chilled one to the bone. Next morning a three-inch snow had covered the icy earth. It covered the smallest twigs and festooned the trees with poetry—winter's lingering farewell. Occasionally a spray of flakes fell down upon my back and against my face. It smelled fresh and damp and hinted of maple sap and of redding bursting buds.

The wind blew stronger. A boy was flying a kite. The woods atop the hill reared out of their snow garments first. By night only the crotches of trees wore any white. The ground beneath was slushy. Tomorrow streams will be up.

In the neighbor's barns teams are whinnering restlessly. The farm boy strides uneasily about and remarks, "How long before we can plow?" Yet still the mad March hare kicks up his heels among the corn stubble and grins with impish nonchalance. From the Easter haymow comes the contented cluck of a broody hen. This still is March.

CITY'S HOUSING ADEQUATE, RPI SURVEY PROVES

Maps and Tables to Show Use of Every Piece of Land in and Around Mansfield.

EDITOR'S NOTE—This is the eleventh of a series of articles on the work and findings of the Real Property Inventory, better known as the RPI, conducted by the W P A in Mansfield.

By HAROLD K. MANSFIELD
Director, Real Property Inventory

The final results of the real property survey are statistical tables and maps showing the facts of housing and the use now made of every piece of land in an around Mansfield.

The facts will set at rest many misconceptions regarding the conditions of housing in the area. For the most part we are very adequately housed, and the real property inventory proves this. There are not slum areas.

The originals of the maps and statistical tables will become the joint property of the city and the county. It is also planned to present the information in a book of approximately 70 pages. The maps—17 in all— will be reproduced in the book and the statistics will be presented in charts and tables.

The first map is a double line street map with all street names for Mansfield and subdivisions surrounding the city. Only those streets that are open to traffic are included On this map all public buildings and industrial plants have been drawn to scale according to the foundation measurements of each and there is a cross reference index so that each building can be easily located and identified.

145 Miles of Streets.

The Land Use Map shows what use is made of each parcel of ground facing our 145 miles of streets, whether it be used for single family residence, apartment house, retail store, factory, etc. There is a total of 104.2 miles of lot frontage that are in residential uses within the city Stores, filling stations, etc, that cater to retail trade have 8 6 miles of lot frontages. Factory and wholesale-house frontage for the whole survey area amounts to 9.7 miles.

There are a total of 652 blocks in our whole survey area. The balance of the maps deal with the block as the unit. The Land Coverage Map shows the percentage of each block that is not in permanent and the percentage that is in permanent use The per cent of the used ground that is covered by structures is also shown. This brings out in sharp relief our congested areas.

The Block Data Map gives in a column of eight figures for each block the following; Average monthly rental value of all dwelling units, the number of dwellings, per cent of homes built before 1920, per cent of home owners, per cent of houses in need of major repairs, number of business structures, per cent of dwellings with no private toilet or bath, and per cent of race other than white.

Following are the balance of the maps by titles only, which are self-explanatory: Converted Structures, Mortgage Status, Condition of Structure, Age of Structure, Owner Occupancy, Duration Owner Occupancy, Duration Tenant Occupancy, Sanitary Facilities, Race, Rental, Substandard, Persons Per Room, and Population—both total and children under 15.

The R. P. I. has gathered together a wealth of facts and figures which together with the maps gives a picture of Mansfield and its housing as it is today. The city planning commission, the chief advisory body of the city in engineering projects and zoning regulations, is the chief beneficiary of this recorded data, and through the planning commission, every citizen is served.

Variety of Uses.

The welfare organizations and social workers can find in the R. P. I. data facts to help them work out their plans and policies. City projects for streets, parks, schools, public purchase, or condemnation and traffic control can also use the R. P. I figures.

Daily the realtor, builder and lending institution must make decisions resting upon accurate information regarding the age, condition and nature of property and its surroundings. All business men dealing in home building materials and equipment can use the R. P. I. data in forming their policies and activities.

All of us can make use of its up-to-date street map on which is blocked in and identified, all schools, churches, institutions, hotels, parks, city and county buildings, banks, and all industrial buildings.

The Works Projects Administration wishes that this information which has been gathered will be used by as large a number of firms and individuals as is possible. For this reason the report in book form, complete with maps and charts, can be purchased for what it costs to do the printing. This cost will not be more than two dollars and less if a sufficient number is printed. However, only the number ordered will be printed, therefore anyone desiring a copy should call the R. P. I. office—Spring 2325 or the Chamber of Commerce.

Next and Last: Substandard Housing.

TELL WEDDING DATE AT DESSERT-BRIDGE

Miss Evelyn Rusk, Ben H. Rawls to Marry March 29 In Evening Ceremony at United Presbyterian Church.

AT A DESSERT-BRIDGE PARTY held last night at the home of Mrs. J. W. Rusk, 473 Sherman avenue, the hostess announced the approaching marriage of her daughter, Evelyn, to Ben H. Rawls, son of Mrs. Lottie Rawls, Park avenue west. The ceremony will be performed at the United Presbyterian church by Rev. Henry Ford at 7 p. m. March 29.

The engagement was revealed to the 10 guests when they found miniature scrolls concealed in the flowers decorating their nut cups. The guests were seated at a long table decorated with pastel shades, spring flowers and green candles.

Bridge was in play at two tables with prizes being won by Mrs. Robert Springer and Miss Jane Tapper. The bride-elect's mother presented her with a gift of linen.

Mrs. Ellsworth Donnan, who leaves tomorrow to make her home at Bloomville, Ill., was also honored at the affair.

Several other parties have been planned for Miss Rusk during the next week. She is a graduate of the Mansfield Senior high school and attended the Betty Jean school of beauty. Mr. Rawls attended high school in Akron, and also attended the University of Akron. He is now employed at the Ohio Brass company.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting with Mrs. E. A. Conant assisting Mrs. Constance. Plans were made for serving a breakfast following the sunrise Easter service at the church on Sunday morning. Arrangements were also made for a dollar party which will be held April 18 with Mrs. R. M. Lamb, Arlington avenue.

Mrs. L. A. Orborn sang, with Mrs. Critchfield accompanying. Mrs. Orcutt gave an Easter story. Tea was served at the close of the afternoon with Mrs Lafe Bruce presiding at the table. Plans were made to hold a covered-dish guests dinner April 18 at the home of Mrs. Ogborn, 112 Vennum avenue.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

IT'S ALWAYS a little disturbing to hear that some of our residents are moving away to make their homes in other cities. . . . But nevertheless, we do get just such news every once in awhile, and some has come up for today. . . . Mr. and Mrs. F. Austin Davey have gone to Baltimore, Md., to reside. Mr. Davey will serve as chief engineer of the Eastern Rolling Mills company there.

With Easter.. Sunday so near at hand, lots of Mansfield college students are arriving in town. . . . Barbara Brunner is coming up from Granville today, where she's a student at Denison university, to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brunner. As her house guests for the week-end, Barbara will have Susan Elstun of Hammond, Ind., Marion Houser of Chicago, and Jean Parker of Philadelphia. . . . Incidentally, Barbara recently was initiated into Delta Gamma sorority at the school.

Speaking of initiates, Harold Duda was taken into Alpha Tau Omega fraternity at DePauw university the other week-end, so he is more than proud of the new pin he's wearing during his vacation here now. . . . His parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. S. Duda, drove to Greencastle, Ind., after Harold, and also brought Bob Murphy, Dick Shaw and Bob Spear (other Mansfielders and members of A. T. O. at the school) back with them this week.

* * *

HAVE you seen Jane Kelley since she's been at home this vacation? She came down from Marygrove college in Detroit to visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Kelley. . . . This is an extremely busy year at school for Jane as she's graduating in June and has all kinds of senior activities to take care of. . . . An important event of April 5 will be the Marygrove Junior Prom, which Jane is planning to attend with Hugh Powers of Cleveland Heights.

* * *

Another vacationing collegian is Barbara Kerr, who's visiting with her mother, Mrs. Mary Kerr. . . . Barb, you know, is a junior at Northwestern university in Evanston, Ill., this year and an active member in the Chi Omega sorority on that campus. . . . While we're talking about Evanston, Chicago and that vicinity, I mustn't forget to tell you that Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. Wendt are going up to the Windy City tomorrow with their children, Nancy, Teddy and Frank, to visit relatives and friends. . . . Perhaps you recall that Chicago was formerly the Wendts' home, so they plan to stay there until the middle of next week.

SINCE most of our news today is about college students, I feel that I must pass on to you some praise about Jean Seybold, a Mansfield music student at Ohio State university. . . . Not so long ago, Jean, who is pianist for the University Chorus, accompanied the group in a concert at Memorial hall and also played several solos. . . . George Hage, when reviewing the program in a Columbus paper had this to say about Jean—"Miss Seybold acquitted herself with great credit. A pianist of obvious talent, her work revealed great strength of wrist and fingers and the ability to employ it without harshness or blurring of tone. In the matter of interpretation, her playing was remarkable for sustaining mood throughout a long work that might otherwise have proved wearisome." So we can all join Jean's parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. L. Seybold, in being rightly proud of her.

HIS Mansfield friends will be pleased to know that Karl Schauwecker, a former resident, is arriving in town today to spend the week-end with his parents, Mr and Mrs. Gottlob Schauwecker. . . . Karl is employed as an engineer in the metallurgy department of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation in Gary, Ind. He also does research work for the company.

* * *

Elsa Maxwell Advises Stout Sisters

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

This little piece might be called "How to Be Fascinating Though Fat." And it concerns the words of wisdom handed out by Elsa Maxwell, who makes a very fine living arranging social functions for rich people who lack her imagination and ingenuity.

Elsa is definitely on the buxom side and makes no apologies for her poundage. "If you're fat," she says, "don't slink into a room, like a criminal, with abject apology written all over your face, even for living. Be self-assertive. Enter with authority and make the whole room yours."

But, she qualifies, to take a room by storm it's necessary to be well-dressed, whether your figure is expansive or string-bean.

Would Elsa Maxwell make the huge sums she does if she dieted to the last ditch, rasped her nerves by inescapable demands of hunger, and ate—heaven help us—the things only that are good for us?

Good living is part of Miss Maxwell's job, and she does not turn down the delicious morsels she prescribes for Dives' tables. She eats and grows fat and has a that's-that air about it, which is certainly more taking than the hungry-dog look women muster at parties as they refuse good things and then act as if they should have a Carnegie medal conferred for their fortitude.

Miss Maxwell tosses aside most of the "stylish stout" hints. She loves gay colors, fluffy furs and actually goes in for white evening gowns, but she is careful to avoid shiny whites like satin and metal-threaded effects, and avoids sequins put on in circles. If you must have sequins, and are on the chunky side, have them sewed up and down.

But Elsa never affects tight clothes. Instead of slimming they accent all the bulges, and show up where you're fat in the wrong places.

Sensibly, Miss Maxwell makes no suggestions as to dieting. She leaves that to doctors. Several eminent physicians have discussed it wisely and well, and the concensus of opinion seems to be don't, if you're going to let yourself be undernourished. Thick cream soups are no more nourishing than good bouillion, the calorie content of which is low. Broiled meats are better than fried. And better declare a moratorium on the frying pan—oysters, fritters, croquettes and such—if slenderizing is your goal.

Ten minutes after you eat a rich dessert, its joys are forgotten—coconut cake, pie a la mode, devil's food and French pastries are as the snows of yesteryear—except for the bulging souvenirs they leave in their wake. Summon the fortitude to look on this type of dessert and compromise on a baked apple or stewed dried fruit, if you would keep your figure.

Many women have become permanent invalids from freak dieting or starving themselves. The trick to keep well and at the same time keep your figure seems to be to have a varied diet, but to decline second helpings. That extra hot buttered biscuit of mornings has many a chin to answer for.

If you must over-eat and life becomes a wilderness without a four-layer coconut cake, have the courage of your self-indulgence and be like Elsa Maxwell, fat but unashamed.

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"The third day from now," he had said was the time limit the message had named. That meant that the final showdown of this contest between the remnants of Jack Leslie's criminal organization and my father's men would be fought out soon.

"You can cope with a brilliant sane criminal," he said, "but you never can outguess a homicidal maniac such as Jack Leslie has become."

"This narrows things down, of course," my father said, "and gives us very little time to complete our plans. Shall I restate the problem?"

"Please!"

The answer came from each of our throats simultaneously.

"Leslie will give us Queen Olga's emeralds—I have verified that the sample he sent was one of the string, so he probably has them—in return for having Noel and Mary delivered into his hands, and his messengers being given safe conduct."

He paused and looked at each of us in turn.

"As you know," he said slowly, "I sent him back a message accepting his terms. He has now named the third day from now as the time, and will send me further details as to the exchange. Now, what suggestions have you?"

He leaned back in his chair, put his fingers together, and looked at each of us in turn. I caught myself wondering if he were simply playing with us, if he already had evolved a complete scheme for dealing with Leslie, or if, fatigued in mind and body as he was, he really wished help from us.

For a long minute no one spoke. Then with the feeling that my father could do no more than regard me as a fantastic nitwit, I said timorously:

"You have told Leslie that you will send Mary and Noel to him, and of course you have no intention of sending them in person. That must mean that you intend to send others to impersonate them. Am I right?"

"Yes, you are correct in your deduction my dear," he said. "But that brings me up against this problem. The impersonators I send will be in great danger when Leslie learns the hoax. And I could not send a woman to him. Yet—."

Impersonators Suggested.

He stopped and I ventured again. "Haven't you some slightly built men in your organization, but men with deceptive strength and who are crack marksmen?"

He waited for a second before answering while his eyes searched my face.

"Yes, I have," he said at last. "Three on whom I can rely, and who are available now. Why do you speak of them?"

I felt like a schoolgirl taking an intelligence quiz, but from somewhere I mustered up courage to answer him.

"Because I recently have had occasion to know Harry's marvelous skill in makeup and costuming," I replied, "and I wondered if having access to Mary's wardrobe and Noel's he couldn't rig two slight men out so that Jack Leslie would be deceived."

Break Thumb Sucking

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

Imagine the agonies of a child who has sucked his thumb for years and years! Think of the shame, ridicule, rebuke, exhortations, nagging to which he has been exposed. Think, too, of the worry to his parents.

In order to help such a child you must win his co-operation and prove to him he can break the habit. To this end the first step is to discipline yourself and the rest of the family to quit hounding him about the habit, and to quit entirely. The next step is to set the stage so he can succeed in conquering the habit for a very brief time. A whole day, even one hour, is too long, as a rule. Ten or 15 minutes make a safer test.

I want to report to you two cases whose treatment I directed and who responded with complete and permanent recovery. One was a boy, nine years old, whose teacher wished to attack the problem at school. She was advised to work out a secret plan with the lad whereby she would observe his thumb-sucking only during the first 15 minutes of the school day, at which time he would try hard to keep his thumb from his mouth. She would record a symbol in a book for each successful morning, leaving blank a space each morning when he failed. When he managed to get 10 marks of success in the book, he was to get a prize. During the rest of the day she would wholly ignore his thumb.

The lad won 10 marks in 10 days and got the prize. Even by the fifth day he said he believed he could succeed all day. On the eighth day he told his teacher he was sure he had cured himself for good, but they continued until he won the prize. The cure was checked after several months and found to have been permanent.

The second boy was 12. He and his mother worked on the problem at home, agreeing on the period from 5:00 to 5:15 p. m. After the lad had won the symbol on eight successive days he told his mother she did not need to bother about the prize, for he knew now he could conquer the thumb. He did. The mother told me after a year that the cure was permanent.

These successes were great compliments to the teacher and parent who made them possible. In each case the child eagerly wanted to succeed and discovered that he could succeed for the short, definite periods. With this assurance he had the courage to attack the problem all the day. Another essential item in the plan was that the teacher and parent, believing it would work, revealed their faith that it would, keeping all rebuke and condemnation from the child.

Rewards are good when they work so as to prepare the ship to sail under its own steam, and don't stir up jealousies in a rival. Many efforts fail, and therefore do harm, because vague or impossible hurdles are set up. When, for example, a certain mother, at Thanksgiving, promised her boy, four years old, a tricycle if he would not climb into her bed again until Christmas, the plan failed. But when she promised him a star for every night he stayed in his own bed, and the tricycle as soon as he had earned 10 stars, it worked. He won the prize after eleven days and stayed in his own bed thereafter.

Solving Parent-Problems.

Q. Would you spank to make a child take medicine?

A. No, but with a good assistant I would put the medicine into him as quickly and effectively as possible, saying as little as possible.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

STOP COMMUNICATION

WHEN YOU jump into the auction with a high call of your own very long suit, you build a spite fence which is difficult for your stronger opponents to climb. In effect, you shut off communication between them and compel them to guess at each other's holdings. It is pretty likely to force them into some compromise spot which is not nearly as good a contract as they could reach if they were not molested. They may finish too high, too low, in the wrong declaration or perhaps doubling you when they could make out better playing the hand themselves.

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♣	Pass	1 ♥	5 ♦
Dbl

There could hardly be a more striking example of the difficulty into which a holder of a strong hand may be thrown by a high barrier bid. South, of course, could be reasonably sure of giving East a fairly bad beating, but he wondered whether it would produce more points than his side could make playing the hand.

Plenty of study could not make South confident even of what was the safest declaration for his side. North might not have very many hearts, and West might have the rest bunched against the side, so he was afraid of that suit. No Trump at as high a level as five was risky. The diamond ace might get knocked out in the first trick or so, and South might have to lose the lead once after that, in spades or hearts, before he had eleven tricks, in which event he would be slaughtered.

Actually, the grand slam was a laydown at hearts, clubs or No Trump, in view of the way the cards were distributed, but North and South could not find it out. They had to be satisfied with setting East four tricks at his 5-Diamonds doubled.

Tomorrow's Problem.

Dealer: East. Neither side vulnerable).

If East takes two spades and shifts to the club J, how should South play for 4-Hearts?

Palmyra

Charles Gregg and Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Gregg called on relatives in Ashland Monday.

The Palmyra Ladies' Aid met with Mrs. Olin Beal Thursday afternoon.

Special Easter services will be given Sunday morning. There will also be evening services.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, March 23.

A particularly lively and exciting day, with many things moving under high pressure, is read from the interesting chain of planetary configurations. While there will be a fine display of initiative, courage and strenuous attack, especially in the direction of putting over major propositions or new and highly constructive programs, in some instances the employment of subtle acumen, strategy or diplomacy might prove quite as effective as sledge hammer blows. A similar condition pervades the private life, where social activities, emotional urge and romance are under high stimuli.

Those whose birthday it is are under strenuous, creative and highly emotional urges during the year, with many things, business and personal, moving swiftly and under high tension. Much is to be gained in launching new projects of major importance, and while pressure, aggressiveness, audacity and ingenuity count for much, in some critical spots sagacity, compromise or policy may prove more lucrative.

A child born on this day may have much ingenuity and skill, with highly-constructive and practical abilities, bold and resolute.

RESUME FORUM SERIES MONDAY

Toledo Educator to Speak on 'Where Are We Going?' in Fourth Lecture.

The series of "Open Forum" lectures being presented at the Mansfield-Leland hotel ballroom will be resumed Monday evening when Rev. Ignatius T. Kelly, S. T. D., professor of French and Italian at DeSales college, Toledo, speaks on "Where Are We Going."

Dr. Kelly will analyze the trends in public and private morality in his lecture which will be the fourth of a series of five. The "Open Forum" series is being sponsored by Catholic societies of Mansfield and will close with a lecture Wednesday, April 3 by Dr. W. T. Sullivan of Toledo who will discuss, "Peace or War?"

A native of Toledo, Dr. Kelly studied philosophy at the Seminaire de Philosophie, Montreal, from 1916-18, and received degrees from Laval university, Quebec, and McGill university, Montreal. His theological studies were made at the Propaganda university in Rome where he was ordained in 1921. Since then he has done post-graduate work in Chicago and Solesmes, France.

Forum Lecturer

DR. I. T. KELLY

From 1922 to 1935 he was professor of philosophy at Toledo Teachers college and since the establishment of DeSales college his work has been in the field of French and Italian.

In his lecture Dr. Kelly will discuss the present chaos and the indications of hopeless spiritual and moral bankruptcy; why individualism, naturalism and statism are essentially pagan, and an antidote to this new paganism which he says has already done much harm and is threatening to do more.

The lecture begins at 8:15 p. m. and will be followed by a question and answer period.

WICHITA, Kan. —(AP)— Only people who believe truth is stranger than fiction should read this.

"Gotta ticket?" inquired the gatekeeper of a young fellow who passed through the Union Station turnstile.

"Yeh," said the lad, absentmindedly.

"Well, eat it!" bellowed the gatekeeper after the young man had taken a few steps toward the train.

Still absent-mindedly, the lad took a couple of bites. Then protested.

They gave him a new ticket after the gatekeeper explained he was shouting to a couple of other fellows.

SEEK WAY TO CUT DIVORCES

Court Will Investigate All Uncontested Cases That Involve Children.

(By Associated Press)

HAMILTON — Butler county judges and the bar association are co-operating in an investigation of uncontested divorce cases involving children.

Common Pleas Judge Fred B Cramer, a sponsor of the project, expressed hope it would deter promiscuous filing of actions when there is no apparent flagrant ground for divorce.

He predicted also that it would help the courts make intelligent decisions concerning the children, as well as assure that the children would be supported by the parents rather than the county.

Under the plan, the clerks of courts lists uncontested actions involving children and Probate Judge W. G. Palmer's office inquires into the "home life and other circumstances" of the principals The case cannot be heard for six weeks after the petition is filed, giving time for a full investigation.

Judge Cramer said that since Aug. 1 he and Judge P. P. Boli had heard at least six such cases "that probably would not have been brought had a prehearing inquiry been conducted. "There are instances," he said, "where trivial causes of a breach between husband and wife can be remedied.

"Statistics obtained in juvenile court disclose that 60 per cent of the children in the county children's home and those placed in private homes by the court have one or both parents living. The county spent nearly $75,000 last year for maintenance of such children."

Judge Cramer estimated that the investigation plan would save the county at least $5,000 annually.

Since President Lincoln signed the Homestead Act, about 275,000,000 acres of Federal land have been transferred to settlers.

In case you might want one, they are free for the asking with this reminder from the management: "They didn't bring the rabbits and particularly good luck."

Congress Opens Quiz In Deaths of 72 Ohio Miners

COMMITTEE TO CHECK ON GAS IN COAL PITS

Inspection of Wreckage to Be First Move; Bodies of 30 Recovered.

(By Associated Press)

ST. CLAIRSVILLE — A congressional sub-committee, seeking the full story of a frightful blast that rocked the Willow Grove coal mine and killed 72 persons, came here today to launch a formal inquiry.

Rep. Bradley (R-Mich.), a member of the group, said that the committee wanted to learn whether there ever was gas in the mine, whether it was a wet or dry pit, all circumstances relatives to storing of explosives, in what ways the operators provided safety precautions, and whether the operators cooperated with the federal and state bureaus of mines.

The committee, a unit of the House mines and mining committee, has been considering legislation providing for federal inspection of all mines at least once yearly. Bradley arrived here yesterday and, following a tour, said the mine was a "shambles." The sub-committee will inspect the wreckage before opening the hearing.

The Hanna Coal Co., owners of the mine, said it was "glad" the investigators were coming.

Besides Bradley, members of the committee are Reps. Peterson (D-Fla.), Cravens (D-Ark.), and Winter (R-Kas.). They do not expect to return to Washington before Monday.

Meanwhile, four Ohio state senators were designated by Majority Leader Frank E. Whittemore of Akron to sit in on the hearing as "observers." They were Tom W. Jones (R-Meigs), Roy N. Merryman (R-Jefferson), Ray Palmer (R-Belmont), and Walter G. Nickels (R-Tuscarawas.)

The bodies of 30 men have been recovered from the mine, and five more were located last night, leaving 34 still unaccounted for. These were believed buried under tons of rockfall and slate. Three men who attempted to rush into the mine immediately after the explosion Saturday succumbed to gas. The last of these, 29-year-old Paul Taylor, died in a Bellaire hospital last night.

Bodies recovered late yesterday were identified as those of Lawrence Hrabak, 46, of Maynard, Mike Pokerino, 29, of Bannock, and Michael August, jr., 40, of Lafferty.

Counties Dividing Twin Beds Leave Divorce Problem

SAN FRANCISCO—(INS)—Twin beds in two counties posed a major divorce suit problem today for Superior Judge Robert McWilliams.

Contesting the court action of his wife Theodore Haines, Daly City WPA worker, pointed out that the county line runs through their property directly below the bedroom, and that his wife's bed is in San Mateo county.

Haines claimed his wife, Bessie, therefore, is not a resident of San Francisco county and that Judge McWilliams' court is without jurisdiction in the case.

However, Mrs. Haines, who charged her husband with cruelty and excessive drinking, testified she was aware of the county boundary. She told the court that after she and Haines separated in February, 1939, she slept in his bed nightly, thereby establishing the required three months residence prior to divorce action.

ASHLAND JURY GETS SAFE CASE

Defense Rests In Trial Resulting From Loudonville Burglary.

ASHLAND—The case of John Sopka, 33, Akron, who is charged with the burglary and attempted safe breaking at the Loudonville Farmers' Equity exchange warehouse in January, was given to a jury of seven men and five women at 11:10 a. m. today.

The trial opened in common pleas court here Wednesday, and during the three-day period 29 witnesses took the stand. Sopko was the last person called to the stand late Thursday afternoon. He testified that at the time of the burglary he was in bed at his home in Akron. He said that he did not know about the robbery until police came to his home.

IDENTIFIED BY TEETH

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Dental bridgework established the identity of a woman whose body was found Feb. 23 in the Ohio river as Mrs. Loretta Coyle, 48, wife of a Philadelphia detective. She disappeared from Wheeling, W. Va., March 15, 1939.

Senate Set for Debate on Trade Program

Up and Down THE STREET

He's not sure just what kind of luck it is, but a young West First streeter got his first date with a girl he had been interested in for some time, the other night, and immediately began to wonder if his jaloppy was going to do the honors properly. He thought if he talked loud enough she wouldn't notice the rattles but would the old crate keep going? The couple got to the theater all right. They got to a couple of night spots afterwards and the chap finally took a good long easy breath when he said good night to the gal at the door of her home. Whistling softly he walked back and got into his car. You've guessed it. The car refused to start.

Denied a marriage license in probate court yesterday because his bride-to-be lives outside the county, a young man said he only regretted that he didn't think faster so he could "put it over" on the court deputy. When the deputy explained that the license must be obtained in the county of the girl's residence, the youth asked if he couldn't fake a Mansfield address for her. Told that that was illegal, he left adding that he would "try again in Wooster."

One of the current laughs going the rounds, according to Screen Fun, concerns Author Louis Bromfield who is now doing a writing chore in Hollywood. For many years, it says, Bromfield has been telling friends about the beauty of his native Richland county and more recently of his 400-acre farm in it. He was doing it the other evening to Jim Thurber in the film capital. Thurber listened, and then said: "It's very strange. But I've met Louis in London, Paris, New York and Hollywood, and every time I see him he says 'Have you heard I'm living on a farm in Ohio?'"

Sword announced the construction plans following conferences this week with the trustees from the county's 18 townships at the courthouse. Only Jefferson and Perry townships requested no help from the county.

The townships and the mileage they intend to build and fix are: Bloomingrove, 2.30 miles; Sharon, 4.15; Jackson, 3.10; Weller, 2.10; Madison, 3.20; Mifflin, 2.60; Worthington, 3.60; Troy, 1.60; Plymouth, 1.50; Franklin, 1.18; Sandusky, 1; Washington, .95; Butler and Springfield, .70 each; Cass, .42 and Monroe, .20.

LAKE ERIE ICE BLOCKS SHIPPING

20,000 Cars of Coal Held Up, Delays Start of Season.

SANDUSKY —(AP)— George Johnson, superintendent of the Lower Lakes Dock Co., reported today that Lake Erie ice was blocking coal shipping.

He said more than 20,000 cars of coal were awaiting shipment as compared with 12,000 a year ago.

Several freighters here are under orders to take on coal for upper lake ports and move before the opening of the regular navigation season. There is open water at the Sandusky docks, but 20-inch ice still holds the freighters in the slips.

JAPS RELEASE WRITER YOUNG

Give Foreign Correspondent Suspended Jail Sentence for Army Violations.

TOKYO—(INS)—Two months and a day after his arrest, James R. Young, Tokyo manager of International News Service, was released from jail today on bail after receiving a suspended sentence of six months' imprisonment for violating the Japanese military code.

In passing sentence, Judge Senehira Hotta found extenuating circumstances in the fact that Young is an American citizen "and America is a country where great freedom of speech exists."

Young, who was charged with violating article 99 of the Japanese army criminal code in dispatches written following a tour of China, was given seven days in which to appeal the sentence if he so desires. In addition, he will bear the full costs of the court proceedings.

In reviewing the case, Judge Hotta said that Young was a man of considerable academic education with more than ten years' experience in Japan and hence must assume responsibility for violation of the army penal code, even though he pleaded ignorance of its provisions.

Therefore, the judge declared, he had decided to impose a sentence of six months' imprisonment with a three years' stay of execution.

Directly addressing Mr. Young through a court interpreter, Judge Hotta cautioned him against repeating the offense in the future.

Jorgensen. Joe Pival, a student, played "Meditation From Thais" as a violin solo, and "Ave Maria by Shubert, was played as a violin solo by Jorgensen. Both were accompanied at an electric organ by Richard Sparks.

The service opened with a candlelight processional by the choir. The auditorium stage was set to represent the interior of a church for the service. ORATORY OPENS AFTER VOTE ON FARM MEASURE Bitter Floor Battle Expected on Trade Extension; Dems to Be in Major Clash.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — The senate prepared to begin debate today on extension of the reciprocal trade program after it passes a farm bill carrying $1,013,000,000 in appropriations and authorizations.

Senate leaders had expected a final vote on the agriculture department bill yesterday, but were blocked by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, (D., La.) who insisted upon pressing an amendment to recompense Louisiana and Florida sugar producers for losses suffered when President Roosevelt lifted sugar quotas last fall.

As it stands now, the farm bill includes nearly $300,000,000 more than the bill approved by the house. Yesterday, $90,000,000 in authorizations were added allowing the agriculture department to borrow from the Reconstruction Finance corporation $50,000,000 for farm tenant loans and $40,000,000 to continue work of the rural electrification administration.

These loans will not be reflected in the treasury deficit. The senate also voted $85,000,000 for continuation of the food stamp plan.

Meanwhile, senate farm bloc leaders hoped that their additions would be approved by the house. The main objection may be to the $212,000,000 inserted by the senate for parity payments to farmers. Neither President Roosevelt, in his budget, nor the house recommended such an item.

As the senate neared the end of debate on the farm bill, Republicans and Democrats prepared for what is expected to be a bitter floor battle over extension for three years of the trade agreements act. Republicans indicated that they would let the Democrats, who are split over the proposal, do most of the fighting.

Republicans, it was understood, will vote solidly for senate ratification of agreements. They now need only the president's signature.

ROUTED BY FIRE

Holmes County Couple Flees as Fire Destroys Home.

MILLERSBURG—Fire early today destroyed the farm home of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Close, two miles west of here, causing damage estimated at $4,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Close were awakened at 4 a. m. today by smoke which filled the house and were able to make their way outside from the upstairs room before flames enveloped the dwelling. All they were able to save were some hunting coats and boots to wear over their night clothes. Mr. Close suffered burns on his feet in getting out of the house.

Although origin of the fire is not known, the blaze is believed to have started in the basement. The loss was estimated at $4,000. The Millersburg fire department was summoned by Close but the blaze was out of control when they arrived.

The Voice of BROADWAY

—By DOROTHY KILGALLEN

Tales From Times Square.

George S. Kaufman, co-author of "The Man Who Came to Dinner," came to town suddenly from the coast and dropped in to catch Saturday night's show without warning the cast. After the final curtain lowered, Kaufman went backstage to criticise, caution, and in some cases berate members of the company for their performances.

His severest tongue-lashing went to Monty Woolley, "The Man," for the bearded thespian's reading of a particular passage. Just as Kaufman was telling the actor how wrong the interpretation had been, how bad the performance, Woolley interrupted him with a gesture.

"Look, Gearge, you can't scold me tonight," he said. "Tonight, as soon as I leave here, I'm going over to Madison Square Garden to play a benefit for the poor little children of the Israel Orphan Asylum."

"That's very nice, Monty," Kaufman approved, "and when they have a benefit for men with beards, I'll play that—but what I said about your performance still goes!"

Extravagance.

Milton Berle, in Lindy's the other night, was telling tales about his mother. He said he was spending a quiet afternoon at home during the course of which he walked into the room where mom was, idly biting into an apple. He took a couple of nibbles, then threw the apple aside. Mrs. Berle looked up angrily.

"Finish the apple," she said indignantly. "What do you think—they grow on trees?"

Danger.

A Hollywood visitor was entertaining a trio in Colbert's with the latest Marie Wilson legend from the cinema colony.

It seems Marie was at a midnight beach party at Malibu, where a well-known (and well-married) film hero took a fancy to her and began stalking her like the wolf in a Disney cartoon. He finally cornered her when the rest of the party was swimming, and the dismayed Marie was barely escaping his clutches when a cry of "help! help!" came from the water. The scream came from, of all people, the actor's wife.

"Listen to her!" Marie spluttered. "I need help, and she's yelling!"

Simile.

A group of musicians from one of the famous bands around the country was munching spaghetti in Bill Bertolotti's bistro the other evening and discussing current music. One of the boys mentioned a currently popular orchestra a favorite with the jitterbugs, and a trombone player shuddered, "I can't stand them—they're too loud."

"You're right," agreed a sax player, "that band's got more brass than Elaine Barrie!"

Inspiration.

Joan Edwards is telling the one about William Saroyan, who was sauntering across town when he encountered a daffy fellow banging his head against a building and yelling "Woo-woo! Woo-woo!"

Saroyan's face brightened like the Wrigley sign.

"Say!" he exclaimed, "what an idea for a play!"

Nonsense.

It's Eddy Duchin who is spreading the foolish legend of the fellow who went to a psychologist friend with an unusual problem. He continually imagined, he said, that seven little red men were chasing him. The psychologist said it was just nerves, and invited the jittery patient out to his Long Island estate for a week-end of fun and a change of scenery.

It was a gay Saturday and Sunday, and the guest seemed to be enjoying himself, laughing and singing, playing tennis, swimming and dancing. The psychologist was gratified at these signs, and just before he took his train to the city on Monday morning he asked the guest how he felt.

"Oh, fine, fine," replied the patient gaily.

"And what about the seven little red men?" asked the doctor.

"Oh, them," smiled the fellow. "Everything's all right—we're pals now!"

Lady-Killer.

During the past few weeks, George Jessel has been linked with so many Main Stem belles he makes Casanova look like a one-woman man. The other night he was sitting with Bert Wheeler and Lois Andrews, Georgie's latest crush, and vice versa) and Lois was pouting because Joan Castle (Georgie's last week's enthusiasm) had snubbed her in the Stork club. She was steaming with annoyance when in walked Elinor Troy (a Jessel belle of a couple of days ago) and hurled a cutting remark at the hand-holding comedian.

"That Jessel," moaned Bert Wheeler, "look at him. I can't get a girl—and he has women to burn!"

Dialect.

The Stork Clubbers were sitting around the other morning chatting about a well-known beauty who sports an increasingly heavy Dixie accent.

"She comes, I hear," said one, "from a very aristocratic Southern family."

"Yes," chirped Ethel Merman, "and when she gets homesick, she goes to see Tobacco Road!"

Hollywood Speaks---

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The "discoverers" of every movie star are legion—even when the star is "discovered" only once.

Thomas Mitchell's "discoverers" could hold a good-sized convention. Mitchell has been "discovered" six times.

First time for Mitchell was in 1921 when he appeared in "Playboy of the Western World," got a nice press, and sank into comparative obscurity.

In 1926, playing in "The Wisdom Tooth," it happened again. A magazine ran a page of pictures of notable men and Mitchell was there. He says he was amazed—"as amazed as the magazine readers probably were."

In 1928 he wrote "Little Accident" and the literary world "unearthed" him as a coming genius.

In 1929 he was discovered as a great stage director, and shortly after that the movies discovered him as a scenarist. They bought his play, "Cloudy With Showers," and took him to Hollywood with it but didn't make the picture. After 10 months he went back to New York and was discovered again as a stage director.

So he came to Hollywood to act in "Lost Horizon" and has been here since. He's discovered for keeps this time since "Stagecoach" "Swiss Family Robinson," "Three Cheers for the Irish," and "Our Town." He is one of the most-in-demand actors in town.

SOME actors, like Mitchell, get themselves "discovered" over and over. Others, like James Dunn, have it happen only once and then have to do something.

Dunn was a hit in his first picture, "Bad Girl," when he came to town about nine years ago. Since then he has done 43 pictures, none to compare with his first. He has made money, and he has put some of it into his hobby, aviation. He's a bad flier. But he's getting the itch to be "discovered" again. He has bought an option on a new play, "Paper Doll," by Richard Carroll, and he's going to New York to play in it.

Dunn is now with Jean Parker and 12-year-old Martin Spellman in "Son of the Navy." That's a movie which Monogram, the lively independent studio, is specializing this season. Spellman is the youngster who used to shine shoes and sell papers on the Metro lot, where Norman Taurog "discovered" him for "Boys Town."

Funny thing about "Tugboat Annie," Norman Reilly Raine, her creator, once knew a woman tugboat owner and wanted to write a story about her. In life, however, the woman was too gentle, lacked the robust color Raine figured he needed.

Then he chanced to see Garbo in "Annie Christie," the picture in which the late Marie Dressler played. So Raine modeled "Annie" on the Dressler pattern and so successfully that the magazine illustrator sketched a Dressler-ish Annie, and the movies, when they bought the screen rights, bought them for Marie Dressler.

Evidence of the mill's antiquity is plentiful, including the statement of an 84-year-old man that his father, a lifelong resident of the region, had had no recollection of a mill there.

Equally important is the fact that the gears are different from any known by the local professor, who is a recognized authority on old American mills.

"One of the most convincing facts," he pointed out "is that no records of anecdotes referring to the mill have been found in that neighborhood. Such mills were important landmarks and were known for miles around in colonial days.

"It might be," he continued, "That the operation of the mill was interrupted shortly after it was built, possibly by some sort of battle. A bullet is embedded in one of the gear segments, and also the cogs are missing from the mortice holes along the rim of the gears. It is even possible that the cogs had not yet been fitted into the gears when the settlers were driven away by some enemy."

MILL GEARS BELIEVED BURIED 20 YEARS OR MORE UNEARTHED

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—(INS)—A set of wooden mill gears dug up in South Carolina may possibly turn out to be "one of the oldest pieces of machinery in America," Professor B. W. Dedrick, retired milling expert of the Pennsylvania State College, believes.

The gears, made of solid segments of southern oak, were found by W. L. Glover, an Orangeburg, S. C., banker, when he dug at the site of an old mill pond about 30 miles from his home town.

A four-foot segment was shipped to Professor Dedrick for identification and another chunk was sent to the Smithsonian Institute in Washington. Officials at the latter place told him the gears were different from any exhibit they had.

Running down clue by clue, Professor Dedrick has concluded that the gears, apparently part of three separate mill wheels, the largest 19 feet in circumference, had been buried at least 200 years and perhaps were made as long as three centuries ago, when colonists were streaming from the Old Country to find new homes and freedom from persecution.

"They might even be a clue to the lost colony of Roanoke Island, N. C., whose people disappeared and might possibly have fled or

Family Glad To Abandon Its Island Utopia

SANDUSKY, O.—(INS)—After four years of life on a 450-acre "Island Utopia" in Lake Erie, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Zelms and their five children have deserted their island haven and are "glad to be back to civilization."

And for the first time in some years, Johnson's Island, in Sandusky Bay, noted as the burial ground of 206 Confederate Army officers, is uninhabited by human beings.

Getting away from it all by retreating to an island "just isn't what it's cracked up to be," according to Zelms. "It's too lonesome—too desolate," he said. We're glad to be living a normal life again."

The Zelms children particularly welcomed the change to the mainland. They missed many days of their schooling when the lake was frozen enough to prevent ferrying to the mainland, but not solidly enough to be walked on safely.

"Now we'll be going to school regularly and keep up with the other kids," they said.

SNOUT STUFF

Chinese Druggist Recommends Rhino Noses for Colds.

HONOLULU—(AP)—Lame back, brother? Or have you a cold? A fever? Sore eyes? Maybe Chee Wo Tong's, Chinese drug store here, is the place for you.

On the shelves are tiger balm, rhinoceros snouts, snakes, dried snake. According to store employes, this get results. For kidney ailment and tired backs, dried lizards are recommended by the storekeeper.

For blood-building the apothecaries suggest seahorse extraction. For colds, they prescribe tiger balm. Rubbed into the skin, they say, this opens the pores so the cold germs can coast out overnight. Ground-up pearls, flour fine, are sold to relieve sore eyes.

All of these articles are chopped up and stewed with herbs for hours. The resulting thick paste is eaten on cold rice.

DIDN'T CHUTE

Letter, 21 Years Overdue, Was Stopped 'In Transit.'

PORTLAND, Tenn. —(AP)—Paul West recently received a letter a friend, Vernon Barry, mailed him 21 years ago from Chicago.

Yellowed with age, the letter was accompanied by an explanation from the Chicago postmaster that it had been caught in a mail chute and was found recently by workmen wrecking the building.

POLES FORCED TO 'COOPERATE'

Germans Control Food Production in Conquered Areas; Butter Price Hits $4 a Pound.

(By International News Service)

ANGERS, France—Under a forced "co-operative" system, Germany is controlling the agriculture production of the conquered area of Poland, the official publication of the Polish government revealed

Goering and Funk are blamed, or credited, with the arrangement named the "Economical Plan for Poland."

Agricultural and food products developed over all German-occupied Poland are registered by special food control centers, "ernaehrungsamt."

Each farmer regardless of whether he farms acres of land or develops the milk and butter of one cow, receives a "co-operative card" forcing him to turn over the greater part of his production to the Reich agents.

So strict is this new system that while it leaves the Polish peasant a bare minimum of wheat, potatoes, beets and dairy products, these cannot be utilized without permission of the agents who travel constantly checking production, distribution and consumption. Breakage of the rules means death.

The supplies thus gathered by the ernaehrungsamt are sent to Germany and distributed within the Reich for its population.

Butter is now $4 per pound in what is left of Warsaw; tea the Polish national beverage, is $30 per pound.

Coal as well has been taken into this system of forced co-operation, most of it being shipped to Germany. The result is that a ton of coal in Warsaw today would cost you $120, according to the figures based on reports reaching the Polish government here.

NEED RECORDS

Dairymen Told to Keep Profit, Loss Figures on Each Cow.

Dairying is a business and profit and loss records should be kept for it as in any other business, nearly 80 Richland county dairymen were told Wednesday night at their annual dinner in the Park Avenue Baptist church.

Speaking on dairy management, Dr. S. M. Salisbury of the department of animal husbandry, Ohio State university, urged the keeping of accurate profit and loss figures for each dairy cow so that the unprofitable ones can be eliminated from the heard.

Dr C. C. Wadsworth, Mansfield veterinarian, discussed the treatment of mastitis in cows.

The meeting was in charge of Max Drake, Monroe township, recently elected president of the Richland County Dairymen's association.

USE RATS IN VITAMIN HUNT

Experiments Will Seek Way For Preserving Chili Content.

LAS CRUCES, N. M.— (INS) — Edith M. Lantz, research specialist in the home economics division of the New Mexico state college will use white rats to experiment on the vitamin content in chili.

It has been determined, Miss Lantz said, that chili pepper when fresh contains carotent (vitamin A) and ascorbic acid (vitamin C). However, in drying chili for commercial use, the C vitamin appears to be lost. The experiment will be used to find a method of drying the chili pod so that C is not lost.

Some psychologists say a person's interest in life can be measured by his newspaper reading habits. If he finds at least one story of interest to him on each page, he probably lives a "well-rounded life."
